You Kissed Me.

You kissed me!
My head drooped low on your breast,
With a feeling of shelter
And infinite rest,
While the holy emotion
My soul did not speak;
Please tell me what you say,
From my heart to my cheek.
Your arms held me fast!
And your arms were so bold,
Heart beat against heart
In that passionate fold;
Your glances seemed drawing
My soul through mine eyes;
As the sun draws the mist,
From the sea to the skies,
From your lips clung to mine
Till I crooked in my bliss.
They might never unclasp
From that rapturous kiss.

You kissed me!
My heart and my breath and my will,
In delirious joy,
For the moment stood still,
Lifting me up to the sun,
No temptation, no charms,
No feeling of pleasure
Outside of your arms.
And were I this instant
An angel possessed
Of the glory and peace
That is given the blest,
I would throw my white robe
Unreservedly down
And tear from my forehead
This beautiful crown
To nestle once more
In that heaven of rest,
With your lips pressed to mine,
And my head on your breast.

You kissed me!
My soul, in its bliss so divine,
Reeled and swooned
Like a drunken man foolish in wine,
And I thought 'twere delicious
To be with you.
Would come while my mouth
Was yet moist with your breath—
'Twere delicious to die
If my heart might grow cold
While your arms wrapped me round
In that passionate fold;

And these are questions
I ask day and night:
Must my soul taste but once
Such exquisite delight?
Would you care if your breast
Where my shelter as then,
And if you were here
Would you kiss me again?

A strong movement is on foot to build a railroad from Chattanooga to Rome and from Rome to Carrollton connecting with the Georgia Central system. How much this move will affect the proposed construction of a road from Anniston to Chattanooga by way of JACK-SONVILLE and Centre remains to be seen. We hope that it will not affect it disastrously.

The Anniston Watchman wants a telephone line between that city and Weaver's Station and JACK-SONVILLE. We think the matter could be very easily managed, if the agent of the telephone company doing the largest business at ANNIS-TON would work it up. Oxford, Anniston, Weaver's, Jacksonville and Cross Plains ought all to be united by telephone lines. It would be very convenient and more than pay each town so connected.

The crop prospect is altogether promising. The Spring was somewhat backward, but the excellent weather that has followed its advent more than compensates for the delay. The prospect now is for a more abundant fruit crop than in many years. This country is well stocked with hogs and the fruit will go far to get them in good condition for fall penning. Altogether the outlook is very favorable. Still, we should like to see more corn planted. In event of a war between England and Russia grain will be high next year and cotton low. Our farmers ought by all means to make enough grain to do them.

Calhoun county is well supplied with newspapers. The JACKSON-VILLE REPUBLICAN with good natured irony observes that if the new DAILY WATCHMAN at ANNISTON proves a success, the REPUBLICAN, POST and HOT BLAST will follow suit. Now we see no reason why a daily paper,
the size of the WATCHMAN, should not succeed in a growing city like ANNISTON, in these days of stersotype matter. But the REPUBLICAN, of the old town of JACKSONVILLE, is too wise to trust its valuable life in such a venture.
It is one of the oldest institutions in the county, has been largely instrumental in giving to Calhoun the prominence she enjoys, and lives in the affections of the people. If any fatality should overtake it the whole county would mourn.—
Cherokee Advertiser.

We did not design to be ironical.
Like our friend of the Advertiser, we see no reason why a small daily like the WATCHMAN may not succeed at ANNISTON. We certainly wish it success most heartily.
It is a sprightly and deserving little sheet.

The Livingston Journal has closed its columns to Rev. Mr.
McCoy, who lately attacked the State University and in consequence became involved in a controversy with its President, Dr.
Lewis.

The minds of all intelligent people who have read the articles of both parties to the controversy are made up as to the merits of each side, and we think that President Lewis can very well afford to drop it where it is. If pursued further a great denunciation may become involved and harm result to the University. We notice already that one writer in the Livingston Journal intimates that members of the same church to which Mr. McCoy belongs cannot give an impartial account of what he really did say at Gainesville. Whether true or not this charge upon a great denomination of christians shows the tendency of the controversy, and as President Lewis himself is a member of that church, he could but deplore a quarrel between his church and his college. We hope that prudence will rule the hour and that the controversy will cease before it passes into another and a much more serious stage. Both the church and the University will be injured by its continuance.

A Trip up Choctawhatchee Valley—A short sketch.

OXFORD, ALA., April 1885.
A trip up the Choctawhatchee valley just now is refreshing in the extreme to one who has been long imprisoned in town. So it proved in our cases. On a sunny Sunday afternoon my wife and I alighted from the cars at Choctawhatchee, a village beautiful in situation, and the nucleus of what is to be a flourishing town. During our brief stay we were fortunate in partaking of the hospitalities of Dr. J. F.
M. Davis, and family. The Dr. lives in a stone's throw of the depot, and although he calls it “camping out,” we should be glad to have such a house. This most excellent lady, who has a wonderful tact at making every one feel easy and at home, is a perfect admirer in housekeeping, and is a complete mistress of culinary art.
They have an exceedingly interesting family of children, two girls and three boys. The youngest the baby boy, the Dr. has dedicated to Jeffersonian democracy, and overwhelmed him with popular esteem by naming him Cleveland.
Three of their children are taking music lessons under the talented Miss May Brown. In the rear of Dr. D's residence, a few hundred yards distant, is a commodious house built by the community for school and church purpose. Here we attended sabbath school at 3 p.m., and were much impressed with the enthusiasm of the entire neighborhood in this cause. Both old and young were there. Union lesson papers were used, and all denominations were represented.
We were well pleased and told them so. But we are growing lengthy. After a very pleasant night, we, on the morrow early took the hack with our kind uncle Wm.
J. Whiteside, who came for us, and journeyed up the valley. The weather was lovely and on every hand the plowman could be seen moving back and forth breaking the fertile soil for the reception of seed.
The broad road to fortune opens before the workers, absolutely sure. At once we took the road for the town of JACKSONVILLE, the old town of North-east quarter Sec. 23, T. 11, South, R. 6, East.

purity of all things above and around; the ever green fields of manns on either side; the music of harp and lute and song, beauty supreme-glory everywhere.

We are proud that we live in a country that can boast such valleys.
We spent two days with our uncle,
Mr. W. who is a model farmer and an elegant home, several farms in this valley, and is surrounded by every convenience; the fruits of his untiring industry.
His wife, a noble woman, has the sympathies of every one in her affliction and earnest hopes are entertained for her recovery.

While here we visited several members of the family of Rev. Mr.
Potter, a good minister, and an humble, devoted christian. We suppose he has not an enemy. His lady is as exceptionally good house keeper. Mrs. Anders, Mrs. P.'s mother, resides with them. She is seventy-six years of age and is universally beloved.

During our stay we went angling, and caught (my wife did) a handsome string of the finny tribe.
But we close. Our visit ended, and so must this brief account of
it. We returned to our home refreshed, and with a consciousness greatly strengthened, that Calhoun, grand old Calhoun county grows better and fairer as the years roll by; that her daughters are the loveliest, her sons the most chivalrous, and her mountains and valleys the grandest and prettiest the sun ever kissed. God continue to bless Calhoun!

LETTER FROM TEXAS.

BEXAR COUNTY, TEX. May 1885.
Dear Republican:—This is a strange romantic country. Yonder in the eastern portion of the country is situated that much written of city, San Antonio. No other city upon the continent of America has so powerful an attraction for the stranger. It is invested with a romantic charm which the genius and progress of American civilization has not destroyed. Its peculiar architecture stands as monuments of another age and race long since embalmed in history, while the accents of a language which seems set to music fall upon the ear at every step, leading one almost to believe that he is wandering amid the sun-burnished plains of Andalusia. Every plaza is historic. Here is the Alamo plaza, where one hundred and seventy-two American soldiers withstood the assaults of four thousand Mexicans until the last man fell cold in death, and of that devoted band but seven appealed for quarter. Let no one dare to accuse me of sickly sentimentality when I say that I felt while standing under its walls, as if I were upon sacred ground. We have been charged as a nation with a want of appreciation for venerable reliques; but what American heart does not thrill with pride as he looks upon that crumbling pile.

The Republican.

MAY 2, 1855.

There are a round dozen applicants for the place of U. S. Deputy Marshal from Calhoun county alone.

Bro. Cather gently hauls the Talladega papers over the coals for not republishing the handsome things the papers have been saying of Talladega.

Alabama has at last got a foreign appointment. Hon. Charles J. Scott has been appointed Minister resident and consul general to Venezuela.

If it is a fair day Saturday, will not the young men of the town be gallant enough to go out and clean off the picnic grounds at the Chalybeate springs, so as to have it in readiness for the picnic the following Friday?

A special dispatch to the Atlanta Constitution says that the narrow gauge connection from the East & West Railroad with Anniston is now an assured fact. Also that Mr. Henry F. DeBardeleben is forming a company for the manufacture of steel in Anniston.

The President has determined to "bounce" all of Mahone's favorites and henchmen in Virginia. It is expected that there will be fully five hundred federal appointments made in Virginia next week. Little will be done in other Southern States in the way of removals just yet.

Don't forget to plant more corn while there is yet time. Cotton fell off Wednesday twenty-five points in New York, owing to the war news from Europe, and bread-stuffs advanced correspondingly. In event of war, we pity the farmer who may be caught next fall with a large cotton crop and a small grain crop.

Bro. McIver, of the Tuskegee News, appeals to us to know if there is any cure for the case of the "Grubs" he is charged with having. It becomes our painful duty to reply that no means has ever been discovered by which the "Grubs" can be gotten rid of. If he is not very careful those Grubs will undoubtedly prove fatal to him. A few more indiscreet publications, like the one calling for a report of the financial condition of the Association, will likely hasten the catastrophe.

The war between England and Russia cannot be long delayed. Russia is steadily pushing her advance in Afghanistan, and immense war preparations are being made by both sides. All hope of a peaceful solution of the difficulty is over in Europe. The war will probably last as long as two years, and may involve other European powers before it is over. It is certain that it will increase the price of breadstuffs the world over. Therefore it will be wise for our farmers to plant yet more corn while the opportunity lasts. A war in Europe may mean low cotton, and does certainly mean high corn, next year.

Maimed Soldiers.

The Attorney General of the State has decided upon a case arising from this county that any Alabama soldier who lost the use of a leg or arm either as the result of wounds received or of exposure and disease incident to the service and caused by it, is entitled to share in the $25,000 fund appropriated for the relief of maimed soldiers. The following letter more fully explains the matter. The cases referred to was a courier who was paralyzed after a long ride made in quick time, and a soldier who fell into fever from a forced march, which fever settled in a leg, lamming him for life.

REVENUE DEPT.
STATE OF ALABAMA,
MONTGOMERY, April 28th, 1855.

HON. A. WOODS,
Jacksonville, Ala.

DEAR SIR—Your favor of the 26th inst., is received.

The Attorney General decides that the parties you refer to, who were disabled by service rendered during the war, are entitled to the benefit of the act in question upon showing that they each lost the use of an arm or leg while in the military service of the Confederate States—either as the result of wounds received or of exposure and disease incident to the service and caused by it.

With Respect,
M. C. BURKE, Auditor
Per C. E. O.

Horace Hood on Members of the Press Association.

Editor Horace Hood, of the Monroe County Journal, in the course of a witty and ingenious article on the Alabama Press Association meeting at Talladega, speaks thus, through Editor Nunnally, of the Tuscaloosa Gazette, of some of the members of the press present at the meeting of the Association:

"Editor Grubbs has talent for eloquence and a vivacity of intellect which serve a good purpose at our press association meetings. "Editor Cather of the Ashville Epistles is as gentle as a woman but when he writes he dips his pen in gall."

"Editor Stanley, of the Greenville Advocate, has a fine head, and as a believer in the science of phrenology I should say that while he possesses high mental qualities, his bump of cautiousness is rather large. But this may be a blessing and not a fault."

"Bro. Walker, the Prince Rupert of the Alabama press," who smiles upon the mountains and on whom the mountains smile, who smiles on the association, and on whom the association smiles, has a head shaped like Philip Melancthon, the reformer. It is the brain of an extraordinary man. "The forehead betokens a vast and comprehensive understanding; and the mind the noblest, the most amiable, and the ensemble the most intellectual that can be conceived."

"Editor Grant, of the Jacksonville Republican, is a true knight of the quill, and is one of the ablest writers on the State press. A clear head, sound judgment and long experience. Editor Grant deservedly stands at the head of Alabama journalists. He has a well developed bump of conscientiousness."

"Editor Rawls, of the Athens Courier, has a fine physique, a broad intellectual forehead, an open countenance, and has pleasant and agreeable manners. I would say, however, that his bump of firmness was deficient, but his general appearance would not indicate this."

"Editor Jelks, of the Eufaula Times, has a kind and benevolent heart, is humane and gentle, and his feelings can be easily won by mild generous treatment. Just now his bump of philoprogenitiveness like that of Tom Baime's, is being rapidly developed."

"Editor Hooker, of the Opelika Times, is rather good looking and wears a devil-may-care sort of an expression that greatly reminds you if you don't want your corns tread on, you had better keep your feet in your own pew. His bump of cautiousness is deficient and like his chief, Col. Ben Keiser, under menacing and cutting language he shows a spirit of ardor, independence and intrepidity that commands respect if not always approval."

"Editor Oliver of the Chambers Tribune, is a sad-eyed, poetical, suave mannered young man whose mild expression readily secures for him a warm place in the sympathetic heart. His bump of ideality is large,

"Charles McColl—" but here the somnambulist stopped and seemed to be in doubt what to do or say. His eyes, which had looked somewhat bright, now appeared to be getting dull and heavy. We were afraid the effects of the opiate were dying out, and that he would stop here and not conclude these personal criticisms upon the members of the association, viewed from a prenological standpoint, and which were very entertaining. But he recovered, and resumed where he had left off, "has—a fertile mind. Being economical in matters of fact—and here the somnambulist again ceased speaking as if in doubt whether to say it but after a few moments, added—"he makes a first class editor."

"Editor Meeks, of the Gadsden Times has such a many dignified business-like look and manner about him, that he over awes me, and I've not been able to phenolize his head, but I believe his bump of secretiveness is fully developed, as also his bump of acquisitiveness."

"Editor Burnett, of the Goosa River News, is small in stature, but big is brains and intellect. I was introduced to him to day, called him Mr. Burnett.

"My name is Johnnie Burnett," said he.

"Why that's the name of a boy."

"Well, I was a very little boy when mother gave me that name."

That was too much for my risibles. I had to join him in a laugh and we were at once fast friends.

"Bro. Clay, of the Huntsville Democrat, deserves a warm place in the hearts of all unmarried editors. He brings to the association two very charming and beautiful daughters who add life and zest to the meeting."

"Bro. Davison, of the Conecuh Star is a mild-mannered young editor, writes well, looks well and is my friend."

"Bro. Graham, of the Shelby Sentinel, is a worthy fellow, an able writer and best of all, publishes a good paper. He will be State Superintendent of Education some of these days."

"Bro. Musgrave, of the Mountain Eagle, having captured the hearts and turned the heads of all the lady members of the association has actually turned his batteries upon me. Well I am proud of the friendship of so noble and worthy a member of the association."

"Bro. Wilkerson, of the Prattville Signal, delivered a beautiful and雄辩的 oration to-day. He acquitted himself well, and reflected credit upon himself and honor upon the association. I was struck with a remark of his after the delivery of his speech, in reply to congratulation of friend. "I regard it an honor to have even done sufficiently well not to have disgraced so distinguished a body as the Alabama Press Association." This could have only originated in the brain of a man not puffed up with the self-assured importance and vanity of a pedantic, who has at his tongue's end a long string of adjectives metaphors and figures of speech that are as windy nothing in argument but do well enough in descriptions of places, and things."

After this week we shall resume our weekly review of the spirit of the county press, which our readers have doubts found interesting. We want the REPUBLICAN to be a true reflex of all that happens of consequence in the county whether of our own gathering or that of our enterprising neighbors of other towns.

Since the trees have put on their full clothing of foliage, Jacksonville is a marvel of beauty. From many points of view in and near the town the scene is lovely beyond description. Even those who have lived here all their lives never tire of drinking in its beauty. The mountains all around us, the verdure covered hills, the clear rippling brooks on every side, the lovely vales which meet the eye at every turn, the long avenues of stately elms and oaks, the vine embowered cottages, the clear, cold, bold spring at the foot of the hills, all form a picture surpassingly beautiful.

An Enterprising, Reliable House.

Wm. M. Nisbet can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs, and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bottle Free. nol,

Negroes in Danger of Lynching.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 28.—[Special.]—News reached the city to-night that there is great excitement at Huntsville over the arrest of William Council, president of a colored college there, who is charged with outraging one of his pupils, and there is a probability of his being lynched by indignant negroes. News reached this city also that a negro named Ellis was murdered at Leighton, Ala., and his slayer was brought to Hillsboro. There is great excitement and threats of lynching are being freely indulged in.

Pure Blood and Strong Nerves.

At 19 years of age I was afflicted with painful pains in my head, eyes, shoulders and right side, and began to spit blood. I tried quite a number of physicians, whose medicines only brought temporary relief. They called it cold, and after exhausting their treatment, said I was sure to die. Being an orphan, and in poor health all my life, I thought death would be a relief. Thus for twelve years I suffered. My only solace was in morphine. For two years I never slept day or night without morphine, so intense was my suffering. During the spring of 1851 I was induced to try Swift's Specific. It acted like a charm. It was a God-send to me. After using it that season, I was completely restored. It gave me pure blood, strong nerves, sound mind and good health. I am now thirty-five years of age and am in perfect health as any lady in Atlanta. Ten thousand tongues could not express my gratitude for finding this wonderful medicine. I commend it to suffering humanity. I commend it to

Dry Tetter Cured.

I have been afflicted with a disease termed Dry Tetter, and have applied various remedies, but to no permanent good. I saw an advertisement announcing that Swift's Specific had cured Mr. James Dunn, of Louisville, Ky., of this terrible disease. I procured thirteen bottles at once and began its use. At the end of seven months there was not the least sign of tetter on my person, nor has there been a single symptom of its return up to date. Therefore I cheerfully recommend Swift's Specific to all who are afflicted with this painful disease. I am very thankful that I ever heard of Swift's Specific. It has brought health and happiness to my home. S. W. PEAK, Feb. 10, 1885. Winchester, Va.

Friendship of so noble and worthy a member of the association.

"Bro. Wilkerson, of the Prattville Signal, delivered a beautiful and雄辩的 oration to-day. He acquitted himself well, and reflected credit upon himself and honor upon the association. I was struck with a remark of his after the delivery of his speech, in reply to congratulation of friend. "I regard it an honor to have even done sufficiently well not to have disgraced so distinguished a body as the Alabama Press Association." This could have only originated in the brain of a man not puffed up with the self-assured importance and vanity of a pedantic, who has at his tongue's end a long string of adjectives metaphors and figures of speech that are as windy nothing in argument but do well enough in descriptions of places, and things."

Several outrages perpetrated by unknown men have occurred recently around Prosperity, S. C.

The North Carolina exhibit at the New Orleans exposition will be sent to the worlds exposition in London in 1857.

Last week Dan Turner shot and mortally wounded Frank Randall, near Smithland, Pointe Coupee Parish, La., from which he is still out.

A plot on the part of the negroes to burn and sack Bolton, Miss., was discovered a few days ago in time to prevent trouble.

"Mr. Tom Poyling, a farmer in Anson county, North Carolina, jumped in his well the other day, and drowned.

In Wilkes county, N. C. the little son of Ed. McBride got drunk, caught fire ran into the yard and was burned to death.

"Mr. R. D. Mullane, road master of the Cincinnati Southern, was chloroformed and robbed of $270 at the Read-house, Chattanooga, Saturday night.

Isac Martin, a young farmer near Salem, Va., went into his field, the other day, and disappeared. Several similar cases have occurred in the neighborhood.

Tired and Languid Women.

How many women are of whom these words are true: "They feel languid and tired, hardly able to bear their weight on their feet, the bloom all gone from their cheeks, irritable and cross without meaning to be, nerves all upset, worried with the children, fretted over little things, a burden to themselves, and yet with no acute disease?" What a pity it is... But a few bottles of Parker's Tonic will drive this away, and relieve the troubles peculiar to their sex.

What will Surely Do It

One's hair begins to fall out from many causes. The important question is: What is sure to make it grow in again? According to the testimony of thousands, Parker's Hair Balsam will do it. It quickly covers bald spots, restores the original color when the hair is grey or faded, eradicates dandruff, and causes the scalp to feel cool and well. It is not a dye, not greasy, highly perfumed, safe. Never disappoints those who require a nice, reliable dressing.

Negroes in Danger of Lynching.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 28.—[Special.]—News reached the city to-night that there is great excitement at Huntsville over the arrest of William Council, president of a colored college there, who is charged with outraging one of his pupils, and there is a probability of his being lynched by indignant negroes. News reached this city also that a negro named Ellis was murdered at Leighton, Ala., and his slayer was brought to Hillsboro. There is great excitement and threats of lynching are being freely indulged in.

Pure Blood and Strong Nerves.

At 19 years of age I was afflicted with painful pains in my head, eyes, shoulders and right side, and began to spit blood. I tried quite a number of physicians, whose medicines only brought temporary relief. They called it cold, and after exhausting their treatment, said I was sure to die. Being an orphan, and in poor health all my life, I thought death would be a relief. Thus for twelve years I suffered. My only solace was in morphine. For two years I never slept day or night without morphine, so intense was my suffering. During the spring of 1851 I was induced to try Swift's Specific. It acted like a charm. It was a God-send to me. After using it that season, I was completely restored. It gave me pure blood, strong nerves, sound mind and good health. THE PRINTER'S HIAWATHA.

Should you ask us why this dunning?
Why all these complaints and mur-mers?

Murders! loud about delinquents,
Who have read the paper weekly;
Read what they have never paid for,
Read with pleasure and with profit,
Read the church affairs and prospects,
Read the news both home and foreign,
Full of wisdom and instruction;
Read the table of the markets,
Carefully corrected weekly—

Should you ask why all this dunning?
From the printer, from the master,
From the landlord, from the devil,
From the man who taxes letters
With the stamp of Uncle Samuel—
Uncle Sam the rowdies call him—
From them all there comes a message,
Message kind but firmly spoken:

"Please to pay the bill you owe me."
Sad it is to hear the message,
When our funds are all exhausted,
When the last greenback has left us,
When the nickel's all have vanished;
Gone to pay the toiling printer,
Gone to pay the paper-maker,
Gone to pay the landlord's tribute,
Gone to pay the clerk and devil,
Gone to pay old Uncle Samuel—
Uncle Sam the rowdies call him—
Gone to pay for beef and Bridget,
Gone to pay the faithful parson.

Sad it is to turn our ledger,
Turn the leaves of this old ledger,
Turn and see what sums are due us,
Due for volumes long since ended,
Due for years of pleasant reading,
Due for years of anxious labor,
Due despite of patient waiting,
Due despite of constant dunning,
Due in sums from two to twenty.

Would you lift a burden from us?
Would you drive a spectre from you?
Would you tame a pleasant slumber?
Would you have a quiet conscience?

Would you read a paper paid for?
Send us money! Send us money!
Send us money! Send us money!

Send the money that you owe us.

More About the Road Law.

If we could. This is a government of the people, and they are entitled to know the character of law imposed upon them.

THE "BLIND TIGER."

In some parts of the county people are almost ready to give up prohibition, if we may judge by what the newspapers say, because men break the law by running "blind tigers." We think these "blind tigers" owe their existence as much to a local sentiment that sustains them or rather refuses to put them down as to anything else. It will not do to say that a man can run a business so public as the sale of liquor must necessarily be, if profitable, in a community and that that community cannot put it down, if so inclined, with all the severe penalties of the law at hand. There is no "blind tiger" in Jacksonville and we undertake to say one could not exist here; not because our people are any greater sticklers for temperance than other communities, but because they have determined that no man shall conduct a business in the town in violation of law, thus breaking down in the minds of our young men and boys all reverence for law. The spectacle of a whole community, with all the keen weapons of the law at hand, throwing up the sponge and leaving the victory to a few lawbreakers is contemptible if not criminal. Respect for law should be enforced at all hazards. If communities which support these "blind tigers" want whiskey sold in their midst, let them be honest enough to say so and make the fight for a repeal of the prohibition law openly and honestly. There is a degree of hypocrisy in the claim that men want the law repealed simply and alone because other men break it, that is as censorable almost as the sale of liquor in violation of law itself.

But this is not all. It is questionable if the $2 the road worker may promise to pay for exemption from road duty can be collected of him, if he has less property than is exempted by the Constitution and laws pursuant thereto, and is inclined to resist payment.

It is plain that the $2 imposed in lieu of work is either a tax or a debt to the county. The road act calls it a tax. If imposed as a tax it is unconstitutional and cannot be collected, for the Constitution does not permit the imposition of a head tax of more than $1.50 and this exclusively for educational purposes. If not a tax, is it not a mere promise to pay or a debt against which a man may "homestead" rather than pay it, if the Beat collector pushes them too hard, especially since it costs only about fifty cents to "homestead," while the tax is two dollars? True the law in one section hints at criminal process and fine against the road defaulter, but if a man has once been released from road work on his promise to pay, not even being returned as a road hand, can the debt thus assumed by him be collected by criminal process in the face of that clause in the Constitution which says there shall be no imprisonment for debt in this State.

These queries are thrown out, not as conclusions from a study of the question, but because they appear on the surface and ought to receive the consideration of thoughtful men.

THE WAR NEWS.

Since our last issue the prospects for peace between Russia and England have brightened. Both powers have agreed to submit the matter in dispute to arbitration of some friendly power, and this in itself will operate to postpone hostilities for some time to come. In both England and Russia, however, the feeling prevails that a war between the two powers will occur sooner or later, most probably within two years, even if the present matter of dispute is settled by arbitration.

Since the dispatches point to a peaceful solution of the present dispute, provisions have fallen in price and cotton is looking up. The war would have helped the iron industries of the South, most probably, but would not have benefited southern farmers, who for the most part buy supplies from the West.

The Anniston Watchman

very warmly seconds our suggestion that telephone connection be made between that point and Weavers Station, Jacksonville and Cross Plains. It is understood connection will be made between Anniston and Talladega. If this is done the connection of these upper towns named will be more desirable than ever. The line then would not be so long as the one from Rome to Gadsden, and much more profitable we should say. Why do the telephone men stand back? Do they lack enterprise to work the scheme up?

Read the verses, "More in the Man than in the Land," published in the Review this week.

"Bro. Hood, of the Monroe Journal, and Bro. Grant of the Jacksonville Republican, have no right to talk about us in the way they do. It shows the want of journalistic courtesy in them to say things about their brethren that they don't mean. We'd like to know who has more gall between their ribs than Lon Grant or Horace Hood? If they don't show it in their newspapers it's because they want an office and are afraid to offend somebody. Holl! for an independent class of editors, who would respect truth more than flattery. We think more of Hood and Grant than they do of us—and that's what is the matter—they can't appreciate our finer sentiments of love and respect and hence they intend to make the ladies believe that there is a wolf beneath our lamb's skin."—Asheville Age.

Before we saw Brother Cather's gallant bearing toward the ladies at the press meeting at Talladega, we might, perhaps, have thought of trying to impair him in their eyes, but neither Bro. Hood nor the editor of the REPUBLICAN could be so foolish as to try it now. Both gentlemen freely admit that Brother Cather has the inside track with the ladies, and they are not so rash as the contest his possession of the belt in that regard. Bro. Hood was right when he said our friend Cather would sometimes dip his pen in gall. For witness of the fact we have only to call the attention of our readers to the terrible lick he gives the unoffending Anniston editors in the 14th, 15th, and 16th lines of the very article printed above.

The Talladega Mountain Home is a well written editorial advocate of Hon. Jno. W. Bishop of that city for Governor. The Home does not profess to speak for Mr. Bishop. It does not even know that he desires the nomination; but it does know that he would make a fine Governor.

With this every one who knows Mr. Bishop will agree. He is a most excellent gentleman indeed and fully capable.

Effect of the Repeal of the Crop Lien in Talladega.

A prominent farmer on the Calhoun side, near the Talladega line, reports more men offering to hire in Calhoun this year from Talladega than in the past five years combined. This in mere anticipation of the repeal which does not go into effect until next January. The opinion so far is that it will benefit the large farmers who can get money to hire hands with, but will bear very hard for some time on small farmers and tenants who have little to pledge for credit outside of the future results of their labor. We still think Senator Alexander acted wisely in taking Calhoun out of the bill until the result of the experiment can be seen in other counties.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Times makes a point that the slow method of the administration give ground for belief that it was a mistake that the public service contained incapable, dissolute, dishonest persons and that there was in reality small reason for the "turn the rascals out" cry. The correspondent goes on to say pertinently:

"Either there was little or no ground for such a cry, and the popular belief that the service contained incompetent, dissolute, dishonest men, was false, or the administration does not do its duty in the premises. If the former is the case, then the verdict of last fall's election was rendered on false testimony or a wrong is being perpetrated in not executing it."

Senator Eustis, of Louisiana, recently, in an interview with a newspaper reporter, attacked Mr. Cleveland's policy most savagely, declaring the administration a failure—all because the work of removal of Republicans and the appointment of Democrats does not go on more rapidly. Most of our public men censure Senator Eustis for his haste in this matter, but the Birmingham Age says more of them agree with him than will confess the fact.

The Minnesota Democrats, or at least a portion of them, seem to have formed a syndicate, through which the offices were to be divided out to the party in that State. They gave it out that applications should be forwarded to them at Washington, and intimated that the President understood the plan and had sanctioned it. Recently, an interesting question was sprung upon the Southern Baptist convention yesterday at an early stage. The presence of two lady delegates from Arkansas brought up the troublesome question of female representation. After a long debate, during which the ladies found some champion, it was decided that the day for lady delegates had not yet arrived, and their names were withdrawn.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Birmingham is happy over an advance in the price of iron.

ROME'S RAILROADS.

Prospects of Large Investments—The Enterprises Now on Foot.

Rome, May 2.—[Special]—Hood & Harris, a reliable firm of contractors are in the city for the purpose of examining the work of the Rome and Carrollton railroad. Mr. Hooper in company with the engineer went over the division between Rome and Cedarwood. The other contractor will be here next week and work will soon be ready to let for completion. Mr. E. S. Browning, of New York, the president of the East and West railroad of Alabama, and one of the directors of the Rome and Carrollton railroad, is in the city. He is much pleased with Rome. A reception was tendered him last night by some of our representative business men at the residence of Dr. J. B. S. Holmes. President Williams is reticent and in answer to enquiries says "wait for result." But from movements on foot it is certain both roads will be built at once.

Judge J. F. Crosby, of Texas, vice president of the Texas and New Orleans railroad, and one of the directors of the Rome and Chattanooga railroad, will be here in a short time to look after the interests of the road. It is announced to day that every cent required by the way of local subscription to both railroads has been raised, and it now only remains for the capitalists in charge of these enterprises to commence the work of construction. It is reported this afternoon that the rolling mill will be established at an early day. Mr. Miller, of Ohio, is now in the city prospecting, with a view of locating a rolling mill here.

Mr. J. Hull Browning, of New York, one of the directors of the Rome and Carrollton and Rome and Chattanooga railway, is in the city looking after the interest of those roads. He is the guest of President J. D. Williams.

Rev. Sam Jones Challenged.

Waco Tex. May 5. [Special] Rev. Sam Jones, the Georgia revivalist, who created such a furor here with his revival last fall, is booked for another engagement here the latter part of this month. Extensive preparations are being made to accommodate the crowds who are expected to hear him. One feature of these preparations is an immense pavilion lighted with gas, with a seating capacity of 4,000 people. These preparations have excited general interest, which is intensified this evening by a publication from Mr. J. D. Shaw, the well known ex Methodist minister, and now agnostic or infidel lecturer and editor. Mr. Shaw challenges Evangelist Jones to a series of public debates on the subject of revealed religion, to take place while Jones is in Waco. It is not known whether or not the challenge will be accepted, but if it is the contest will no doubt draw thousands of visitors here to hear it. Jones is considered the ablest and most original revivalist in the southern Methodist church, while Shaw is unquestionable the leader of the agnostic movement in Texas. He knows all about religious methods and arguments, as it is not yet four years since he was voted for at Nashville as a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church south.

A Bold Preacher.

The boldness of Samuel Davies will be illustrated by a single anecdote. When president of Princeton college, he visited England for the purpose of obtaining donations for the institution. The King (George II) had a curiosity to hear a preacher from "the wilds of America." He accordingly attended, and was so much struck with his commanding eloquence, that he expressed his astonishment loud enough to be heard half way over the house, in such terms as these: "He is a wonderful man!"

"Why, he beats my bishop!" etc. Davies observing that the king was attracting more attention than himself, paused, and looking his majesty full in the face, gave him a broad smile and said, "I am a bold preacher."

"When the lion roareth, let the beasts of the forest tremble; and when the Lord speaketh, let the kings of the earth keep silence." The king instantly shrank back in his seat like a schoolboy who had been rapped on the head by his master, and remained quiet the remainder of the sermon. The next day the monarch sent for him, and gave him fifty guineas for the institution over which he presided, observing at the same time to his courtiers: "He is an honest man—an honest man. Not one of his stiffer bishops could have dared to give him such a rebuke."

The Minnesota Democrats, or at least a portion of them, seem to have formed a syndicate, through which the offices were to be divided out to the party in that State. They gave it out that applications should be forwarded to them at Washington, and intimated that the President understood the plan and had sanctioned it. Recently, however, the matter was brought to the President's attention by a Minnesota politician, and he expressed his surprise, and said it was the first he had heard of the matter. He said that such a scheme could not be supposed to have his endorsement. Several attempts have been made to control the Federal patronage in other States.—Montgomery Advertiser.

What will Surely Do It

One's hair begins to fall out from many causes. The important question is: What is sure to make it grow again? According to the testimony of thousands, Parker's Hair Balsam will do it. It quickly covers bald spots, restores the original color when the hair is grey or faded, eradicates dandruff, and causes the scalp to feel cool and well. It is not a dye, not greasy, highly perfumed, safe. Never disappoints those who require a nice, reliable dressing.

A Wonderful Discovery

Consumptives and all, who suffer from any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can find a certain cure in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Thousands of permanent cures verify the truth of this statement. No medicine can show such a record of wonderful cures. Thousands of once hopeless sufferers now gratefully proclaim they owe their lives to this New Discovery. It will cost you nothing to give it a trial.

A DASTARDLY MURDER.

A Drunken Brute Murders a Farmer Without Provocation—Lynching Talked of.

Chattanooga Times.

SCOTTSBORO, ALA., April 30.—North Alabama comes again to the front with a most horrible murder. Mannie Hillian, a peaceable farmer living in Marshall county, just below Langston, and in one quarter of a mile of Hillian's store, was killed yesterday by a man named Ward with a rock. Ward is a transient fellow, who is in the employ of Major Grantham, and had been paid off a few days since. He and another man—name unknown—were passing Hillian's house, and Ward, with three bottles of whiskey in his pocket and partially drunk, asked Hillian, as he sat in his front yard making a plow stock, if he (Hillian) had anything against him. Hillian told him no. They were strangers. This question was asked four times, when Ward said, "I will make you then, and jerked up two rocks, with one of which he knocked Hillian down. Hillian's wife, who was in a delicate condition, ran out to her husband, getting between the two men; and as Hillian arose with a plow handle in hand, Ward struck him on the head with the other rock and broke his skull. He lived a few hours and died. Ward drew the handle on Mrs. Hillian and was going to kill her, when his companion interfered and took him away. Last night at 9 o'clock Ward was arrested within six miles of where he committed the dastardly deed. There are strong reasons for believing he will be lynched to-night, as there are many threats of that kind. Hillian married Mr. Abner Rossen, daughter of this town. Mr. Rossen is the ex-Mayor of Scottsboro.

JUDGE R. L. GILLESPIE, P. M.
Messrs. Adamson & Shipley, of Waycross, Ga., write: "Please send us some 'Ils of Life' immediately. We are having a big run on your medicine. Instead of dying out, like most medicines, in course of time, it seems to be growing in favor; we sell lots of it. Please send the books soon."

Messrs. Wirthorn & Urban, of Allegheny City, Pa., write: "Having a large sail for your PERUNA and MANALIN, it is giving the best satisfaction of any medicine that I ever handled. In one case the constable for the precinct, having very sick and low spirited for a long time. For several years he has tried all the doctors here, and we have some good ones, and they did him no good. After much persuasion I sold him two bottles of PERUNA and MANALIN. He took half of the medicine. I could see a great change in him; and now he is sound and apparently as there is in this vicinity, and he says it is cured well. He is number one man and is highly respected. He is satisfied that your medicine saved his life after all the doctors and all medicine had failed. Being unacquainted with you, I refer you to John Shultz & Co., Alton, Pinckney & Co., and other business houses of Cincinnati."

J. G. Shultz, Greenup, Ky., says: "Gentlemen: I am handling your medicine, and having a good trade on them." H. Wolf & Son, Wilkesburg, O., write: "Gentlemen: We handle your goods, and they give good satisfaction."

A. G. Shultz, Marietta, Ga., writes: "My son is still improving in health. Your PERUNA is the best thing for him."

H. L. Day & Co., New Vienna, Ohio, write: "S. B. Hartman & Co., Columbus, Ohio,—Gentlemen: Your PERUNA sells fast and gives good satisfaction here. We sell more PERUNA than any other preparation we handle."

W. Bauer, St. Marys, Pa., writes: "My son is still improving in health. Your PERUNA is the best thing for him."

Mr. James J. Adams, who many years ago left Jacksonville and went to Texas, spent two weeks here among his old friends and relatives. He was very warmly welcomed by the old friends of his boyhood days. Mr. Adams is now a resident of Bryan, Texas. He is tax collector of his county and manager of a large estate on the Brazos. While here he was the guest of his brother Mr. Robert Adams, whose good wife supplemented the cordial welcome of the husband by a display of her fine skill in the culinary art and the exercise of her admirable powers to please. It is not strange that he found his visit so very pleasant.

A washing of liquid cow manure, applied from time to time, will prevent calves from biting the bark from young fruit trees. The liquid manure should be applied to the tree and not to the calf. In that case, you see, the "bark" becomes worse than the "bite" and the calf goes away disgusted. Seriously, this is a valuable hint to fruit growers, notwithstanding the fact that it is encumbered with the above "bully" joke. [Copyrighted—other county papers forbidden to print.]

Maj. T. W. Francis had the lard and hams off of less than one third of the hogs killed by him this year hauled to Jacksonville Tuesday, and he sold the same at once for over one hundred and fifty dollars in cash. He has more than enough bacon left on the place to supply it, besides reserving over forty hams for his own family table. He has hay enough to do him next year if he should make none at all this year, and is now selling corn to his neighbors who fancy the cultivation of cotton. He has blooded cattle and raises horses and mules which he disposes of from his pastures. He pays his hands well, houses them well and treats them well, and any one of them who may grow careless or lazy can be brought to a sense of duty by a mere threat of discharge. The farm is well managed and pays a handsome profit each year. It forms only a part of Maj. Francis' extensive business ventures, but it is managed on the same strict business principles which govern his mercantile and other lines of business. It is needless to say that little cotton is raised on the place and this only as a surplus crop.

A Capture.

Sheriff Woodruff and Deputy Sheriff Parker had great difficulty in arresting the muscular proprietor of a "blind tiger," in Beat 4 a short while ago, but the two finally prevailed. Sheriff Woodruff will sooner or later get every man against whom indictments have been found in this direction. He is an active and fearless officer, and is determined to do his duty in the enforcement of the law. Men ought to obey the law, whether they like it or not. The remedy is in the repeal of obnoxious laws, not in disobedience of them.

The Lima Bean.

It is an evidence of southern improvidence, neglect and lack of knowledge that every farmer in the land does not raise quantities of the lima beans. They always command a high price, north and south, and are the only beans that can be kept without trouble in this climate through the entire year. What is more palatable or nutritious than dried lima beans properly cooked? There is no better place to raise them than in the fence corners, which are rich with the washings from the field, while the fence affords just the kind of a place the vines delight to trail upon. In this climate the vines grow and bear until killed by frost. They should be gathered to keep the pod is entire and the name of that seed is sin. Your infidelity is as deep as your meanness and no deeper.

"How sad, yet how sweet is the memory of our beloved teacher. It is sad, when in the school room, to think that his encouraging words his cheering smiles and his daily prayer for our future welfare shall be no more, and that his voice has ceased forever; but it is sweet to know we may meet him in Heaven, when the battle of life is ended. Oh, that we may all follow the example he gave us! The municipal election is exciting considerable interest now. I learn that there will be several tickets in the field. Of course somebody is bound to get beat.

Right Rev. Bishop Wilmer preached in the Episcopal church Wednesday morning, the 6th inst. Our town feels honored in having the visit of this distinguished prelate.

A party of fishermen started out last Wednesday for a stay of several days on Terrapin creek. They will try it with both hook and seine.

Mr. J. M. Bradshaw returned last Wednesday from a visit to South Alabama.

We are in the midst of the dull season and local news is scarce. Your correspondent cannot, like the celebrated Joe Multon, manufacture news to order, so will close for this time.

R. W. Carson, the most conspicuous colored clergyman in Texas, and regarded as one of the foremost of his race in influence and education, has published a card urging negroes to leave the republican party, and as he pathetically puts it, "come over to the Lord's side."

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved, that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonies attest their curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Wm. M. Nisbet.—No. 2.

It is rumored that the Cornwall and Round Mountain Iron Works, in Cherokee will be started up soon, as several inquiries have recently been made about getting rates over the White Star Line Steamboat Company for blast furnace material.

Important Court Decision at Huntsville.

Special to the Birmingham Age.

HUNTSVILLE, May 1.—Judge Bruce, of the federal court rendered a decision to-day dismissing all suits brought by original attachment. The decision will effect many cases in every federal district in the state. The judge holds the federal courts have no jurisdiction in such cases but all civil suits must be begun by summons and complaint. The decision will create a sensation throughout the state.

Some say this book is not the word of God. I've never seen a town yet that didn't have a "smiling" infidel. The Ten Commandments are sufficient. I care not who wrote them, but the man who lives below them ought to be on the chain gang. You who break them are not only on your way to hell, but an outlaw. You say you have doubts; if you quit your meaness I'll be responsible for your doubts. I never saw a man yet who disbelieved in a hell who, if there is one, is not making a bee line for it. A man never had a doubt which, if he pulled up by the roots, had a seed at the bottom, and the name of that seed is sin. Your infidelity is as deep as your meanness and no deeper.

MORE IN THE MAN THAN IN THE LAND.

BY SIDNEY LANIER.

I knowed a man which he lived in Jones, Which Jones is a county of red hills and stones, And he was pretty much by getting beans, And his mules were nothing but skin and bones; And his dogs was as flat as his corn-bread pones; And he had boat a thousand acres of land; This man—which his name was also Jones—He swore that he'd leave them old red hills and stones, for his home to make nothing but yellowish cotton, And little meat, and his forces were gotten; And his little corn he had it was bought; And danger'd if a living was the land; And the longer he swore the madder he got, And he riz and he walked to the stable lot, And hollowed to Tom to come ther' and hitch For a pilgrimage somewhere what land was rich; And to quit raisin', cockburns, thistles and thorns; And a walshing their time on the cussed land.

So him and Tom they hitched up the mistles, Pertesting that folks were mighty big fools, That did stand in Georgia their lifetime out; Just to sec'nd a living when all of 'em thought Get places in Texas, when cotton would By the time you could get in the land.

And he driv by a house whar a man named Brown.

Was a livin', not far from the edge of the hill, And he hollered Brown to buy his place, And said that bein' as money was scarce, And bein' as sheriffs was hard to face, Two dollars an acre would get the land.

They closed at a dozen and fifty each, And he paid him a dollar and twenty, And loaded his corn and whinlin' and truck, And moved to Texas, which it ruck.

Brown said, "I'll give him a little land."

But Brown moved out on the old Jones farm, And he rolled up his breeches and bared his arm;

And he rooted it up and ploughed it down;

Then he ploughed his corn and his wheat in the land.

Five year gild by, and Brown one day (Which he got so far he wouldn't weigh), Was a livin', not far from the edge of the hill, To the bullett dinner you ever see,

When one of the children jumped on his knee,

And said, "Dad, I'se Jones, which you bought,"

He had never owned any land.

But Brown he axed him in, and he sot him down to his vittles smoking his pipe, Brown looked at him sharp, and riz and swore That "whether man's land was rich or poor, There was more in the man than there was in the land."

A CLERGYMAN'S TEMPTATION.

New York Sun.

The old capitol at Tallahassee was a picturesque sight. It was built by the Federal government in the old territorial days, before the orange developed into a gold mine, when land agents were unknown. It was of brick, stuccoed in imitation of stone. Here and there the angry storms, indignant at the palpable fraud, had torn off portions of the outer garment leaving the dingy brick exposed. The building was two stories high, with a basement and ornamented with heavy columned porches, from the floor of which on a hot July day pitch exuded like patriotism from the disinterested office seekers who thronged the lobby and the hall. The legislature was in full session and the scene was a most animated one. Never in any country has a stranger sight been seen. At one end of the hall the state senate was in session. At the other, the house of assembly was incubating, and in the hall and rotunda a negro festival was in progress, the right to hold it within those sacred precincts having been given by solemn vote of the assembled statesmen.

It was an amusing sight. Upon plain pine tables grouped around the halls, rested huge dishes of chicken stew and chicken pie, flanked with pie, cake, biscuits, and other things calculated to tempt the legislative appetite. Behind these sat jolly, laughing "aunties," dressed in cool calico garments, with green bouquets carried by black doves, as it were, to show that the journey of theark was over and peace and plenty could be had. Behind a large tub of lemonade a yellow Venus presided, and with seductive smiles and a tin dipper beguiled diners and picayunes out of thirsty assembly. The centre of attraction, however, was the watermelon, table, behind which a stalwart black knife in hand, shouted at short intervals, "Yah! your nice slice of watermillion; only half a dime a slice. Walk up gentlemen, and try it. Get from under dat table, ya triflin' pot-liekin' boy, or I'll chop off yer head wid dis yer knife."

Under and around the table little children, cut in their blackness, romped and gambolled, and through the halls and out of the broad piazzas young girls, with arms around each other's waists, leisurely sauntered, their bright eyes flashing as they caught the admiring glances of some proud Caucasian. Old mothers in the church in little groups discussed some knotty question in theology, while their stronger halves crowded the legislature in ornate-mouthing and awsome wonder at the eloquence and learning there displayed. There was a profusion of white dresses and gorgeous ribbons, and all was joy, laughter and song. Near the watermelon table a quartet of happy young girls sang in a low melodious voice, the song of the Methodist convert. The song was not loud enough to distract the legislature or to be heard very far away, but to the young Northerners, leaning against a pillar gazing in amused idleness at the scene, it sounded very quaint and sweet.

Inside the house of assembly the scene was equally animated, but hardly more dignified. A white member, so drunk that he could hardly keep his seat, was gazing at the speaker with owl-like gravity. One or two in the galleries, a near relative, this vast wealth will not compensate her for the loss of her "boy" who wore the grey.

confreres, strutted about the floor. Others, bolt upright in their seats, munched peanuts, to the drowning accompaniment of the reading clerk's voice, as he hastily called the vote on minor bills. From my vantage point, near the speaker's chair, I watched the changing scene.

The Rev. Scipio Palmer, member from Dug Out, was growing terribly impatient. Never to him had the session seemed so long. The Rev. Scipio during slave times had been the driver of the family coach, but after he became free, having noticed that the negro preachers did not hard work and always looked fat and glossy, he decided to join that ilk, and being able to read a little he had no trouble in doing so. Now he was in trouble. He was a great lover of watermelon. Every once in a while he could hear the noise and confusion of the festival, and he squirmed in his chair as though covered with fleas. He did not know but what he would be expelled if he left before adjournment, and as he was getting ten dollars a day for his services he dared not risk the venture. Still from the hall came the cry, "Water-million, only ten cents a slice." He became more and more uneasy. At last a bright idea struck him, and leaping to his feet he shouted to the top of his powerful voice, "Mistah Speakah!" All eyes were turned in his direction as the speaker announced, "The gentleman from Dug Out has the floor." From the corridor came the cry, "Look at dis boss watermillion. Look how red han' insides am. Oh, my a'min' I'se a whopper, an' on'y a dime a slice."

The Rev. Scipio was a sight. He was bathed in perspiration, and his eyes were nearly starting from his head as he glanced anxiously at the door. In response to the speaker's recognition, he yelled with frantic energy: "Mistah speaker! I move dat we now de-journ."

From the other side of the house a tall, thin white man arose, and pointing his finger at Scipio said: I sincerely hope that the gentleman from Dug Out will withdraw his motion. We have a very important measure now pending before the house. The discussion cannot possibly last over three hours, and I expect the honorable gentleman himself will like to be heard on the subject."

"Watermillion, nice juicy water-million, on'y a dime a slice!" was heard in the corridor.

"Did I un'stand dat white man say tric hours?" inquired the black clergyman.

"Yes, I think that we will be able to close the contemplated debate in about three hours. I see no cause for the gentleman's excessive agitation, although of course, he should be deeply interested in it, as it is a measure for the amelioration of his own race."

"Only tree more slices of dis boss watermillion left! Wh'll hab 'em nex' one?" from the corridor.

The hair on the head of the Rev. Scipio stood straight up. "Gorra mighty," says he, shaking his fist at the white member, "does you hear dat? You kin all stay here ev' you want'er, but I is gwinter de-journ right now," and, seizing his hat, he bolted out of the room, and soon was up to his eyes in a lucious melon.

The local newspaper is the thermometer that marks the rise and fall of cities and towns. It is the infallible indicator of the thrift enterprise of the people among whom it is published. The slightest variation in the times are felt in the office of the local newspaper and recorded in its columns. A wise community will profit by these hints and give a decent support to their county paper. The local newspaper takes no money away from home. Every dollar it makes is spent in the town, and what you give to its support returns to you with interest.—Ex.

The colored Democrats of Baltimore are going to make themselves felt in the next campaign. At a recent enthusiastic meeting they unanimously adopted a resolution reciting the national success of the Democratic party "by the assistance of independent colored men, who dared to assert their rights as American citizens and cast their votes with that party." They pledged their continued support to the administration, and declared their belief that "it is to the best interest of the colored race to embrace the Democratic cause to secure full rights of citizenship."

A zealous Christian woman in Lowell has left her husband's bed and board because he will not be converted. She has reached the "perfect state," and is so outraged that her husband, otherwise an exemplary man, will not come to her way of thinking that she will no longer live with him.

A young man named Elijah Pierce committed suicide in a car on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, near Birmingham, Ala., on Wednesday, by shooting himself with a pistol. He was on his way from Johnson Creek, New York to Live Oak Florida, and was in bad health.

Mrs. Henrietta Morgan, the mother of the Confederate General John H. Morgan, has fallen heir to $1,000,000 through the death of Baroness Dr. Farnenber, a near relative. This all vast wealth will not compensate her for the loss of her "boy" who wore the grey.

The Alabama River.

Through sweet Southland the Alabama flows,
 Where golden corn and snowy cotton grows;
 And eyes of night,
 Lie mirrored on her gently trembling breast,
 While soft south-breezes whisper:
 Here we rest!

Through sweet Southland the Alabama tells
 The screaming whistle and the sounding bells,
 How long ago,
 Swift to and fro,
 The Indian arrow sped from bark-

Beneath the moss-hung oaks, and skies of blue!

Through sweet Southland the Alabama flows,
 Where weeping willow for the Indian grows,
 Beside the stream;

And like a dream,
 We see the figures of our pale-faced sirens,

On faithful guard beside the forest fires.

Through sweet Southland the Alabama winds
 Where sunburnt hands the yellow fodder binds;
 With movement slow,
 And fro, and fro,

The silver blossoms masses swaying there,
 Quaff mystic draughts of life, and feed on air.

Through sweet Southland the Alabama winds,
 With graceful curve, the lovely river trends,

At silent way,
 Towards the bay,

And swan-like boats upon her bosom glide

To tryst with white-sailed vessels on the tide.

Through sweet Southland the Alabama goes,
 Past towering pines and dewy-laden rose,
 Where wildly floats

The weirdest notes!

The sweetest song that ever wove the day!

The peerless singer wears Confederate grey.

Our sweet Southland the Alabama binds,

From crested hills her silver scarf un-

winds,

Her golden sands,

Her priceless lands,

Her spotless banner to the breeze unfurled,

The land of rest, the refuge of the world!

NOTES OF OUR NEIGHBORS.

The Alabama Pharmaceutical Association met in Anniston recently. The Association meets in Birmingham next May.

The Hot Blast notes the fact that the Anniston Board of trade has selected Mr. Sam'l. Noble as their delegate to the Atlanta Commercial Convention, with Messrs. Parker and Riddle as alternates.

Rev. Mr. Claggett, Presbyterian evangelist has been holding a series of meetings in Anniston, and the Hot Blast notes the fact that much religious interest has been awakened among the people there-by.

Maj. T. H. Hopkins, formerly of Anniston, is now merchandising in Birmingham.

The stockholders of the Anniston car works have had a meeting and decided to issue $30,000 of 8 per cent bonds and $10,000 of preferred stock. With this sum it is hoped the factory may be enlarged and put in a working condition.

The Hot Blast has the following in regard to the resignation of Conductor Harlow:

"General regret is expressed along the line of the A. & A. R. R. over the resignation of clever Gus Harlow, the conductor on the passenger train. Superintendant Dunn says he was a faithful official, and will be greatly missed. To Gus Harlow and Superintendant Dunn is mainly due the popularity of this route to Talladega."

Mayor Hight, of Anniston, tried two "blind tiger" cases last week. One was convicted and the other was discharged for want of evidence to convict.

The Hot Blast has this to say in regard to Senator Eustis' arraignment of President Cleveland's administration:

"We are unwilling to go quite as far as Senator Eustis in his opinion of the administration of President Cleveland, but we are afraid that time will show that he is right. It is beginning to be a question with the people, as to which party is in power."

On the subject of prohibition the Hot Blast has emphatic opinions. We give below an extract from a short article in its issue of the 9th on this subject:

"It has long been found out that prohibition does not prohibit; that restriction does not restrict; that sumptuary laws cannot be enforced."

All stock done in a first class manner. I keep a full line of pumps, hose, pipe, etc. No. 100, Main Street, Jacksonville.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS.

In proportion to the population no state in the Union can show more grogshops and drunkards than the state of Maine. It is the natural result of the resistance against a law which puritanical people persist in forcing upon their neighbors—not for promotion of temperance, but simply to prevent people from doing what they are disposed of.

The Hot Blast offers some excellent advice to young men on the subject of office seeking. It says: "Don't become office seekers." This advice is certainly good.

The Cross Plains Post notes that Prof. J. B. Graham and Mr. A. B. Roberts were ordained deacons of the Baptist church recently.

The Post says: Burglars entered the houses of Messrs. Tobe Hanna and Penn Bedell on Tuesday night last. They were evidently in search of provisions, but Mr. Hanna informs us, in a humorous style, that they met with a merited disappointment at his house.

Mr. B. F. Savage, of Goshen Valley who has been quite sick with measles, has recovered.

The Post delicately hints that a plate of strawberries would be acceptable at that office.

The municipal election in Cross Plains will be held the third Monday in May.

New houses are going up in Cross Plains. The panic has retarded her growth but little.

The Post says:

"The grand resources of Alabama must be kept before the public by the press of our own State. This is the only way to invite capital to our wealthy section of the country."

The Sloss furnace at Birmingham, is shipping brown hematite ore from Oxanna in this county.

Speaking of President Cleveland, police, the Watchman says: "Cleveland is one of the most just and humane presidents the country has ever known. Because he is a Democrat he does not see fit to remove every republican office holder in the country, and just here we acquiesce in his views. If a man is all right in every other respect let him alone."

The Watchman says that Rev. J. C. Wright and Mr. J. H. Christian are building dwelling houses in Oxford.

A negro in Anniston recently fed his mule on peas and gave the animal a liberal supply of water. The Watchman says that mule "busted." The Watchman has heard of a "blind tiger" a few miles from that place.

Old Age Seeking Relief.

Hartford, Ky., March 24, 1885.

Dr. John M. Johnson: Dear Old Friend—Pills similar to the enclosed (Rev. Jessie H. Campbell's "Two More Important Cases") occur almost weekly in our paper in relation to Swift's Specific. I presume upon our friendship to inquire of you in relation to it—it's curative qualities, price and manner of procuring it. Having lived eighty-three years through the most important part of the world's history, the prospect of dying from cancer on the face is not very consoling. Let me hear from you at earliest convenience.

Very truly your old friend, HARRISON D. TAYLOR.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 26, 1885.

Harrison D. Taylor, Esq.

Hartford, Ky.

My Dear Friend—Your very highly esteemed favor of the 24th inst. reached me on the 25th. You want information in regard to the celebrated medicine manufactured here, known as S. S. S. I have watched with much care the effect of this medicine upon those who have used it, and bear willing testimony to its good results in a great majority of instances. The firm engaged in its manufacture are gentlemen and capitalists, and are far above falsehood or deception as any men in your community. You may confide implicitly in any of their statements touching its utility. You can get it at the drug stores in Louisville, Evansville or even in Owensboro, Ky.

I am sorry for your affliction, but I believe this medicine will cure you if persisted in. I would stop under one dozen or more large size bottles, which can be secured at reasonable cost.

STATE NEWS.

Mr. Cleveland is moving very quietly, and removing very slowly. He has begun to turn out heads of bureaux at Washington, after displacing most of the ambassadors. He will perhaps get to the federal marshals and attorneys at an early day, and these are the officials most complained of in the south.

We are much pleased with the consideration the new president is showing to our section; so much so that we feel it to be in bad taste for Southerners to criticize his other conduct. Surely no one could have made a more generous allotment of the high places of the federal government than he has. When we find such recognition accorded to the South, after the humiliating exclusion the Radicals effected, we feel like it was worth all the labor of several hard political campaigns. Under Radicalism no Southerner received office save those who had betrayed or deserted their people. The Akermans, Longstreets, Mosbys, Orrs, and Hunts were more detestable than if they had been the worst of our Northern foes. Now we find Lawton, McLane, Keily, Jarvis, Jackson, Lamar, Hubbard, Garland, Atkins, Scott, and others, are men who stood by the South in her days of agony and misfortune. We shall bear with much from Mr. Cleveland before we cry out, and all because of this generous recognition of the South.

Montgomery Advertiser.

Masked men robbed an express train in the heart of Indiana the other night. We are growing uneasy. This lawlessness may spread South.

Gundersville Democrat.

Dr. Shadrack says Gen. Grant's cancer is growing worse. This doesn't matter, however, as long as he continues to grow better.

Birmingham Age.

Senator Eustis on President Cleveland.

"You can say for me and you cannot say it too strong," Senator Eustis said, "that in my judgment Mr. Cleveland thus far, from a Democratic standpoint, has been a conspicuous and humiliating failure. The half-hearted manner in which the President has been pursuing the important work of placing in the hands of trusted, capable, and efficient representatives of the party, through whose influence and almost superhuman exertion he was placed at the head of affairs, those various charges and duties for the safe conduct of which the Democratic party is alone to be held responsible to the people, is little less than disgusting."

Untrue to the confidence reposed in him and unworthy of the great compliment bestowed on him by his constituents, his administration has commenced with a series of blunders, and his friends throughout the Union have just cause for complaint. Indeed, I am sorry for this, and regret to be compelled to make the statement, but it is a fact nevertheless, and the question now is whether the errors, of which I speak, and which have become so patent to the whole country, are mistakes of the head, or the result of evil promptings and treacherous conduct toward the party whose principles he claims to represent. The fact that a horde of unscrupulous, ignorant, dyed-in-the-wool and offensively partisan radical leaders all over the country under Democratic rule, and in direct violation and contradiction of the very principles of Democracy and the wishes of a majority of the people, as expressed at the ballot box is a shame and a disgrace, and a reflection on the competency, capability, and character of those whose suffrages placed Mr. Cleveland in the White House. It should be understood that a President and a few cabinet officers do not of themselves constitute a party or an administration. The active workers in all the multifarious departments of the government—those who make the figures, manipulate the books, and keep the records—are the administrators of our affairs, and these under President Cleveland are Republicans. They are the same who have been running the machine for nearly a quarter of a century, whom the people had lost confidence, and regarding whom a change was so eagerly and anxiously desired by the country. Now let me ask: What sort of reform is this? And what is likely to come out of it? The fact is, Democrats do not intend to be held responsible for this kind of

The Republican.

MAY 16, 1885.

The President has appointed Hon. H. Clay Armstrong of this State, Consul to Rio Janeiro. The salary is $6000 a year.

Rev. Sam Jones says when a newspaper sets down on a man, he is a "gone fawn skin," or words to that effect.

Alabama day at the Exposition is said to have been a big thing. Gov. O'Neal and Col. Jno. W. A. Sanford both made speeches.

Ex-Congressman Charles M. Shelly, of Selma, has been appointed Fourth Auditor of the Treasury Department. This is an appointment worthily bestowed.

John Edwards, who recently killed Polk Miller near Gadsden, was bound over to the circuit court in the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars. The preliminary trial excited great interest.

Representative Wm. R. Morrison announces that he has not given up the fight for the Illinois Senatorship, notwithstanding the fact that the Republicans now have a majority in the Legislature. The old man will most probably reconsider this determination and give it up later.

The Democrats in Illinois, by their apathy, have let the Republicans elect their candidate to the Legislature from a strong Democratic district, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of a Democratic member. The consequence is the Republicans now have a majority of one in the Illinois Legislature, and Logan will probably be elected U. S. Senator.

Hon. B. B. Lewis, President of the State University intimates in a late "card" that he is done with the McCoy controversy. Both the University and the country is to be congratulated on this. We think President Lewis has vindicated the University from the charge brought against it by Mr. McCoy and that is sufficient.

A negro named Samps Henry, of Gadsden, was found dead, with a bullet hole in his head, about a mile and a half from Gadsden, in the woods, Monday night last. It is supposed he had been playing cards with some one and had been shot and left by his antagonist. He was well known about Gadsden, and was employed at Echols' saloon at the time of his death.

Rev. Sam Jones, in alluding to his past sinful life during a sermon in Chattanooga said: "I got mighty low down, low down indeed, but I never got low enough to be a member of the Georgia Legislature."

In the same sermon he let this hard one fly at the politicians:

"I have more hope for any man in the universe than an old broken down politician, I have never prayed for one since the war."

Speaking of the theologians he said:

"I despise theology and botany, but I love religion and flowers. Take a theological student and kiln dry him in a college; when he comes out he will never shrink any more; has shrunk as small as he can."

Rev. Julius Ochs, a Jewish minister of Chattanooga, in his sermon last Sunday endorsed Rev. Sam Jones as follows:

"There is nothing in his sermons which cannot be endorsed by every well thinking man or woman; it is as fit for a Jew as for a Christian. * * * We may differ with Mr. Jones in many points; we may not endorse his peculiar dogma, but we certainly must admit that he is trying to do good, that he is earnest, sincere and conscientious. We must take into consideration that he is a Methodist minister, that he believes in the doctrine of his church, that his church considers this world as a preparatory step to the next, and its canons forbid dancing, playing cards, theatre going, &c. He preaches to a christian community only, and holds up a mirror before those who style themselves christians, and yet violate every rule and ordinance of their church. He refers to Hell too often, but not more than from his standpoint is necessary. We do not believe in him, because we don't need it, but there are some who do. He exhorts his people to repeat, mend their ways, and become better men and better women, lead a moral life to meet eternal reward, and this sentiment every right thinking person can endorse."

DOLLARS VS. SOULS.

The Chattanooga people begged the Nashville ministers piteously to let the Rev. Sam Jones stay with them only a few days longer. Here are a few samples of the way they pleaded:

The hope and salvation of our city is in your hands; will you not consent for this modern Jonah to remain in "Nineveh" a few days longer? —C. S. Peak.

In the name of humanity, let my brethren with us a few days longer! —D. Waterhouse.

Let him stay; we want to give God one city. —G. W. Waters.

Don't break up this revival we have not had one since the war. —S. C. Peebles.

Spare us Mr. Jones, in the name of the endangered souls of our brothers and sons. —J. J. Frater.

For the sake of a sick people let him stay here! —Reformed Gambler.

I would not dare to be the Christian man who interposes to interrupt the work here in the face of the hungry cry from Chattanooga. —May Strong Mayhew.

It would seem almost a sin for him to leave now. —W. E. Baskett.

For the sake of men, women and children, let us have Mr. Jones a few days longer. —W. B. Campbell.

We appeal to you for the sake of souls say yes! let him remain! —E. W. Anderson.

Hundreds of us have sons and daughters interested in the subject of religion, and we cannot spare him. —David Humphreys.

Oh! how we would be blessed by his longer presence. —A. W. Palmer.

God open your heart to our pleadings. —E. E. Prothro.

The Nashville preachers took these and hundreds of other prayerful appeals under consideration and decided that, as Mr. Jones was booked for a lecture a certain night and in as much as eight hundred tickets had been sold, they could not grant the request. This looks very much like saying "We can afford to refund the money to the ticket holders, even if Chattanooga should be damned else."

SAM JONES.

Nashville Stirred From Center to Foundation—An Unprecedented Occasion.

Chattanooga Times.

NASHVILLE, May 11.—Fifteen hundred people gathered in the Gospel tent at six o'clock this morning to hear Sam Jones, all the street cars running earlier than usual to accommodate the passengers.

were packed into the tent and at least two thousand failed to gain admission. The sermon was the most powerful ever heard here and the effect of the revival is already felt. Nashville is more stirred up than ever known.

Tonight every man, woman and child rose to ask for prayers and a most affecting scene was witnessed all over the tent. There are no doubters now as to the good effect of the preaching.

PERSONS AND THINGS.

The publishers of General Gordon's diaries have refused an offer of $20,000 for the copyright.

Sixty-three democrat members of the Indiana legislature are aplicants for federal positions.

Pittsburg has twenty-five national banks. There are only three other cities in the country where so many banks are located.

Beecher says that the book of Revelations was written for orientals, and that it is "only here and there that a white man can understand it."

Straws show which way the wind blows. The little town of Sterling Ill., makes every saloon-keeper pay $1,000 a year in advance for his license.

Chautney F. Black, at present the democratic lieutenant-governor of Pennsylvania, is favorably mentioned by many democratic papers in that state as a suitable nominee for the governorship.

Senator Cameron intends to take no part in the pending state contest in Pennsylvania.

He has engaged quarters near Los Angeles until November and will remain there, hoping to recover his health.

Professor C. V. Riley, the entomologist of the agricultural department, says that the United States soon to be visited by two immense swarms of locusts—the thirteen and seventeen year species—and that they will remain until July. He predicts that they will do but little damage.

"Steve" Elkins is almost persuaded to desert his false political gods. He is reported to have said very recently: "I am compelled to say that I think, personally that Mr. Cleveland's policy is better than would have been that of the man I spent dollars and time to elect. Still, I hate a democrat."

The National Guard of Pennsylvania is to be reduced to ten regiments. The state will be divided into halves geographically. The first brigade will be located in the eastern and the second in the western part. The reorganization is to be made in the interest of economy and efficiency.

In the course of a magazine article on General Wolseley, Archibald Forbes says that in the last thirty years there have been only two "heaven born soldiers"—Stonewall Jackson and Skol, left Sheridan and Prince Frederick.

Charles have approximated to the character. Among "exceptionally able soldiers" he names Lee, Grant, and Sherman.

For every 1,000 males in the city of Philadelphia between the ages of 20 and 50 years, there are 1,000 females. In Baltimore the females are more numerous, there being 1,125 to every 1,000 males of the ages above named. Probably Providence intended there should be spinsters, or else too many young men have "gone west" with the exception of a slight attack of rheumatism in his ankle. The American continent is fast being transformed from its untamed state and its prairies, and the older continents beyond the ocean. The American people are fast, under these influences, developing into a nervous, energetic race, remarkable for its vim and business qualities; yet there is danger that in the course of years these may combine to the ruination of the physical character of the people, and leave them feeble and altogether different from their forefathers. General debility is now much more common than formerly, and seems to be on the increase among the masses. Many remedies have been extensively advertised for this wide-spread complaint, but none of these have been so successful or with such general favor as the remedy manufactured by Dr. J. B. Hartman, and used by him.

Mrs. S. C. Gandy of Massillon, Stark County, Ohio, writes: That he has been induced to try PERUNA for his complaints, and that after using three bottles of the medicine he was greatly relieved. He braced him right up and gave him energy, and restored him to his youthful vigor. He ascribes his cure to PERUNA, and says it is a wonderful remedy.

Adolph Bakhus & Co., Springfield, O., writes: "We are having a good sale for PERUNA. It sells as well as we have before, and gives the best satisfaction."

Mrs. G. W. Newell, Newtonville, Ohio, writes: "I have been a great sufferer for the last six or seven years, with general debility and change of life. I was very much reduced, having taken four bottles of PERUNA, which has restored me to perfect health and strength. We think PERUNA is a grand medicine."

The President has a hard time. If he makes an appointment all the other fellows are mad. If he takes time to consider the qualifications of an applicant he is abused for being slow. If he makes the appointment without taking time to investigate all the antecedents of the appointee he is berated for acting precipitately. All the same he is giving the country the best administration it has had for many long years.

THREE DEAD NEGROES.

The Result of a Negro Outrage in Alabama.

SELMA, Ala.: May 12.—[Special.]

A mysterious murder came to light in the vicinity of Dixie, upon the East Tennessee, Virginia, and Georgia railroad, between this city and Calera Sunday last. The dead body of Scipio Atchison, colored, was found riddled with buckshot, in a forest. He was the father of a young negro scoundrel who committed rape upon the person of a white lady in the neighborhood, the rapist, escaped but was hotly pursued by a band of resolute men, who failed, however, to capture him. The father was enraged and swore death and vengeance to the men who tried to bring his son to a just punishment.

On Saturday Scipio was passing through a forest. Shots and screams were heard, and Sunday his lifeless remains were found.

To-day it is authentically reported that another negro Steven Sullivan, is dead, but the body has not yet been found. Tom Ward is also missing. On Saturday night last it is said three hundred white men, armed to the teeth, gathered to suppress a threatened insurrection of negroes.

The whole country from Dixie across to Verbeena, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, is aroused, and all men go armed. It is not known definitely how many negroes have been killed, but the excitement runs at fever height over a large scope of country.

AN ALABAMA LYNNING.

A Bestial Brutal Sufferer's Quick Penalty for His Crime.

Last Tuesday night a negro named Alexander Jordan entered the house of a wealthy farmer named Davis, living near Allsborough, Ala., and attempted to rape his daughter, a beautiful young lady about eighteen years of age. Jordan was shot by Mr. Davis in attempting to escape, and was captured the following day and put into jail at Tuscaloosa, Friday night. Shortly after midnight yesterday morning, a mob of forty men from Allsborough rode up to the jail at Tuscaloosa and made the jailor surrender the keys to the jail. Jordan was taken from his cell, and as he was leaving the jail he begged the sheriff to shoot him. He was taken to a bridge a few hundred yards out of the town and hanged. He made a full confession.

There is nothing in his sermons which cannot be endorsed by every well thinking man or woman; it is as fit for a Jew as for a Christian. * * * We may differ with Mr. Jones in many points; we may not endorse his peculiar dogma, but we certainly must admit that he is trying to do good, that he is earnest, sincere and conscientious. We must take into consideration that he is a Methodist minister, that he believes in the doctrine of his church, that his church considers this world as a preparatory step to the next, and its canons forbid dancing, playing cards, theatre going, &c. He preaches to a christian community only, and holds up a mirror before those who style themselves christians, and yet violate every rule and ordinance of their church. He refers to Hell too often, but not more than from his standpoint is necessary. We do not believe in him, because we don't need it, but there are some who do. He exhorts his people to repeat, mend their ways, and become better men and better women, lead a moral life to meet eternal reward, and this sentiment every right thinking person can endorse.

THE FANCIES OF FASHION.

Bangs will remain in fashion during the summer.

The jacket is the street wrap for young ladies under twenty-five.

The short "Spanish" or "Sultana" jacket is fashion's latest whim.

Short hair is fashionable in England, and is gradually coming into favor in this country.

Breakfast jackets are made of surah covered with Angora net and edged with a ruff of Angora lace.

The pretty beige and almond-tinted dresses are revived and find as much favor as they met twenty-five years ago.

Heavily jetted shoulder capes will give richness without additional warmth to a summer costume, and promise to be very fashionable.

Pretty and unique sash curtains are made of white India silk with Turkish embroidery applied and outlined with gold thread.

Lace-edged doilies are the latest fashion in these ornamental trifles. Valenciennes or Medicis are the laces most used for this purpose.

Tray cloths set off tea table very prettily, and are now made in the most elaborate manner of India silk or finest linen, with wide lace borders and elaborate embroidery.

Beaded lace in jets will be utilized this season in a new way: the pattern will be applied to the dress or garment and outlined with beads sewn on, thus forming a solid bead embroidery effect. This makes rich and handsome trimming.

Dust cloaks of pongee are most convenient for spring and summer traveling, and are made like those worn by the sisters of charity, with deep, full plaits hanging from the neck band, and a full gathered cowl which may be worn over the bonnet if desired.

Texas Blue Grass.

We clip the following from the Selma Times:

We were shown yesterday a sample of this wonderful grass, in which those who are engaged in raising grasses are taking great interest. Kentucky Blue Grass (Poa Pratense) has long stood at the head of our grazing grasses and a field well set in that grass cannot be bought in central Kentucky for less than $100 per acre. Now here comes a grass that is, to-day, forty to fifty-six inches tall, while Kentucky Blue Grass growing in the same plot, does not exceed twelve inches in height, and most other grasses not six inches high. It has immense undergrowth of fine long slender leaves which grow at the rate of an inch a day and making a splendid forage as well as hay grass, which beats the Kentucky Blue Grass all to pieces.

This Texas Blue Grass was first found on Red River in 1853 by the United States Botanist, but was taken little notice of until 1876, and has been slowly propagated since. This sample was grown by Captain Carlos Resse at Marion. It has proven perfectly hardy, having in Oregon stood a test of thirty degrees below zero, without being the least hurt.

It stands the hoof well, is splendid for lawns, cemeteries, front yards, as well as fields. It is perennial, and once established lasts years, and can be destroyed as easily as Kentucky Blue Grass. It grows well under shade, making a most valuable grass for our timber lands, which are now almost useless. It roots four or five times as deep as the Kentucky Blue Grass, which enables it to withstand the longest drought and the severest cold. But the best feature about it and which shows its value is that it is a winter grass. It dies down or commences its rest in June, but the early rains of the fall bring it forward rapidly and by the time other grasses are killed by the frost, this is ready for grazing, and when once well set furnishes grazing through the winter. It multiplies very rapidly by sets or the seed. Planting either in rows twelve inches wide by twelve inches in the row will entirely cover the ground in twelve months and become so thick that the ground can not be seen. With Johnson Grass for hay and summer grazing, and Texas Blue Grass for winter grazing, what more do we want to make the Gulf States the best beef producing and dairying section in the United States?

Grass raising is the surest, simplest and best way to solve the problem of the South's agricultural future. It would seem that after we have been trying for years to grow cotton and get rich, and have failed, that we should have adopted grass culture years ago. Had we done so we would have seen better farms, better horses, better fences and happier homes than we do now.

Raising cotton to support the West, by buying their meat, corn, mules, hay, etc., may be pleasant and profitable for them, but it does not pay us, and we ought not to be slow finding it out.

The Press

The Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, in a recent article in regard to the rapid growth and development of the South, says of the press:

Every dollar spent in the building up a first class local paper in a town will be returned many fold, for even if the money thus spent in advertising should not bring a direct profit, it would be more than repaid by the immense good that a flourishing paper necessarily accomplishes for the town in which it is published. To say that a town is judged by its papers is only to state a truth that everybody knows.

Some may say that one paper is naturally more pushing and enterprising than others—very true; but no paper can be enterprising unless its business justifies, and the seeming lack of enterprise in many country papers is often solely from the lack of adequate financial means.

Our ideas as to dozens of Southern towns, that we have never seen are formed by their local papers and, we imagine, that, judging simply by these papers, we can almost without a mistake, name the town whose business men are pushing and energetic, and then, on the other side, name those where enterprise is almost unknown.

If the people of any Southern town are anxious to see its population steadily increase, the value of their property enhanced, and all their business interests prosperous, the first and most important step to take is to furnish their local paper with such support as will enable its publisher to furnish a thoroughly live paper, and then pretty soon the outside world will begin to hear of the paper, and then of the town, and presently they will begin to make inquiries as to what kind of a town it is, as a place of residence or for business, and then if the place really has good advantages it has started on the road to prosperity.

JACKSONVILLE, CALHOUN COUNTY, ALA. SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1855.

The Republic

THE SOUTHERN PRESS.

BY LAURA LORRIMER.

Read before the Alabama Press Association at Talladega, April 7th, 1855.
THE SOUTHERN PRESS! I hail the growing power, which grasps the problems of the passing hour. Whose mind grown rich with stores of wealth untold guides safe the barque with steady fearless hold; It is, trust too! too pure of heart, To ever play a tyrant's cruel part, Or soil its robes, by using, if it could, Its giant leverage for aught but good!

It has its living heroes and its dead, Those whom we name but with un-governed head; Men demigods in intellect whose hands are unspotted, dropped their battle brands. And, worn with restless toil, have found sure ease, Where grows the Lotus of eternal peace.

Pence to your memories whom I do not name,

Whithin my heart I shrink you all the same;

Unspotted by the world and crowned with bays, Waiting the flat of the judgment day. In my glad girlhood years on years ago,

You brightened life with kindly words, and lo!

With frosted hair and lips of faded bloom I lay memorial blossoms on each tomb.

Ah, age grows talkative! My feet astray Amid the violet banks of youth's fair May,

Have lost the path and wander from to day.

Pardon if thought in lingering, back-ward flight,

Paused, glamour-bound a moment in the light,

Crowning the memories which with strength divine,

Through distance purpled vista, faintly shine;

Casting a radiance on the path which lies.

By thorn environed under bleaked skies.

Back to your crypts, sweet memories sleep once more.

The past is past, the present has the floor:

The weapons dropped upon the battle-field.

Fresh hands uplift, and lifted ably wield:

From well-beat bows wit's diamond and steel flies.

As lightning flies—on cloudless summer skies,

And takes the place of sterner studies fraught

With deeper meaning in the world of thought,

But lightly veiled, while speed the passing hours.

Which pleasure asks for banquet, song and flowers,

These are quicksilver days. Life's pulses leap,

At fever heat—there is no time for sleep.

So, earnest workers, lift again the thread,

A moment dropped, and busy hand and head,

Toil is old. The tethered lightning trained,

To serve their need on slender pathways chained.

Hither and thither flies, and youth and age,

Are eager gleaners from the printed page.

Think ye! whose lightest speeches day by day,

Both passion and opinion deftly sway.

How human hearts like some poor, wounded bird,

May fall, death-smitten, pierced by one short sword,

Strength should be gentle. Thro' each trying mood,

Let mercy shine; a sweet beatitude:

And this evangeli glide from every pen,

"Peace upon earth and good will among men."

Prof. Smith's Report and Calhoun.

We are indebted to Prof. Eugene Smith, State Geologist, for his report to the United States Census Bureau, on the cotton production of the State of Alabama, with a discussion of the general agricultural features of the State. This report shows Calhoun to be one among the very richest counties in the State both in yield of field crops and their mineral resources. Strange to say the average number of pounds of cotton produced per acre in Calhoun is far above that of any county in the Central Prairie Region or "Black Belt" of the State. The very richest of these (Lowndes) produces an average of only 143 pounds of lint to the acre, while Calhoun produces an average per acre of 195 pounds. Only three counties in the State exceed Calhoun in the production of cotton per acre, and these by only a few pounds in each case.

The "Coosa Valley Region," composed of the counties of Cherokee, Calhoun, Etowah, St. Clair, Talladega and Shelby, produce on an average 62 pounds more of lint cotton to the acre than does the famous Central Prairie or "Black Belt" region, and an average of 38 pounds more to the acre than the rich "Tennessee valley region." A glance at the table will show the high standing of Calhoun among the counties of the favored Coosa valley region. For instance:

Calhoun planted only 33,714 acres in corn and raises 469,595 bushels, while Talladega plants 40,376 acres in corn and raises only 454,573 bushels.

Calhoun plants only 26,433 acres in cotton and raises 10,777 bales, while Talladega plants 32,411 acres and raises only 11,832 bales.

Calhoun plants only 29 acres in tobacco and raises 6,592 pounds, while Talladega plants 20 acres and raises only 5,520 pounds.

In the production of sweet potatoes Calhoun also leads Talladega. Calhoun plants only 283 acres in sweet potatoes and raises 27,875 bushels, while Talladega plants 335 acres and raises only 22,872 bushels.

In wheat Talladega leads Calhoun by a small fraction. In cotton, corn, oats, tobacco and sweet potatoes Calhoun is shown by Prof. Smith's statistics to be far the more productive county of the two.

Talladega has heretofore been supposed to be the richest agricultural county of the Coosa Valley region, and hence we select it for comparison with our county. The comparison is bound to be gratifying to our people, and will serve to show them what a favored county they have. They raise much more cotton to the acre than the richest county of the famous cotton belt and more cotton and everything else to the acre, except wheat, than the famous old county of Talladega. In mineral wealth she confessedly leads all the counties in the State, except Jefferson, and time will prove her superiority even here in the character and extent of her mineral deposits. Why should men want to leave such a county?

The dead lock in the Illinois Legislature was at last broken by the election of Logan. This result was brought about by the apathy of the Democrats who allowed a Republican member of the Legislature to be elected in a Democratic District. The stay-at-home Democratic voters of that district are directly responsible for the election of Logan.

Rev. Sam Jones nearly paralyzed the newspaper reporters in Nashville the other day, at the close of a sermon by the remark:

Gadsden's New Postmaster.

The President has appointed Daniel Liddell postmaster of Gadsden. The Gadsden correspondent of the Chattanooga Times says of the appointment:

"The appointment of Mr. Dan Liddell as postmaster at this place gives universal satisfaction to our people. The first news received here of the appointment was through the columns of the Times. Mr. Liddell has been a lifelong Democrat, and by his faithfulness, intelligence and unflinching courage has endeared himself to all honest people. As a business man, he is better or more favorably known in the city. He is noted for promptitude, energy and the strictest integrity; an excellent gentleman, and will fill the office with honor to himself and in a manner reflecting much credit upon the Government."

The Gold Boom in Talladega.

TALLADEGA, Ala., May 18.—[Special.]—The greatest excitement prevailed here on account of the recent discoveries of valuable gold leads. More than one hundred thousand dollars have been invested during the past week. Representatives of northern investors are here to day. It is reported that Deardorff, of Birmingham, has made large investment in connection with the Nobles. This mineral boom has given new life to the city of Talladega.

Note.—Late Talladega papers, issued since the above dispatch was sent to the Constitution made no mention of matters therin referred to.

PISTOLS IN BIRMINGHAM.

A Quarrel over a Game of Cards which Produced Lively Results.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 19.—[Special.]—An exciting duel took place this afternoon in a billiard hall between W. T. Bradley, general delivery clerk at the postoffice, and Henry Barnard, the proprietor of the hall. Bradley and Barnard had a difficulty over a game of cards last night, but were separated. It was renewed to-day by Bradley going into the billiard hall telling him that unless he refrained something he said the night before, he would shoot him. Barnard replied, "Shoot away!" At this Bradley began firing at him with a Smith & Wesson six-shooter, the second shot taking effect in Barnard's right shoulder. Barnard then ran behind a cigar stand, and taking a large Colt's army pistol from a drawer opened fire on Bradley. Both fired five shots. Barnard's arm being wounded, he could not manage his heavy weapon to advantage, but shot in almost every direction. Bradley's fifth shot passed through Barnard's hat, and after firing it threw the pistol at Barnard and then took to his heels. Bradley was arrested and placed under a $1,000 bond for assault with intent to murder.

What will surely do it.

The bill making temperance in instruction in the public schools at Massachusetts compulsory is not moving very rapidly through the legislature of that state; but a satisfactory measure, it is believed, will be passed.

One's hair begins to fall out from many causes. The important question is: What is sure to make it grow again? According to the testimony of thousands, Parker's Hair Balsam will do it. It quickly covers bald spots, restores the original color when the hair is grey or faded, eradicates dandruff, and causes the scalp to feel cool and well. It is not a dye nor greasy, highly perfumed, safe. Never disappoints those who require a nice, reliable dressing.

Improvements in Talladega.

TALLADEGA, Ala., May 18.—[Special.]—The new board of aldermen have held several important meetings recently, and there are great schemes under discussion looking to the building of city buildings, a new jail and the establishment of water works.

The Devil.

Augusta, Ga. Chronicle.

Rev. Mr. Chaney has tackled Rev. Sam Jones on the subject of Hell and the Prince of the Powers of the Air. We have no doubt in his own fashion, the Georgia "son of thunder" will know how to take care of himself. The decadence of morals always carries along with it a double effort to argue God out of His universe by the philosophers, so-called, and the Devil out of his jurisdiction, by lay and clerical purists! Mr. Stephens used to ascribe the horrors of the French Revolution to just such a condition of affairs. First came the encyclopedists, who abolished the Deity. Then came the leaders of the rabble who, emulating Satan, laughed at the idea of a hell they did their best to make palpable on earth. The old Commoner added that, if the doctrine of eternal punishment were to be commonly denied or lost in the human understanding, the world would be at the mercy of its worst elements, who are now measurably restrained by fear of perdition. Rev. Mr. Chaney goes a bow-shot beyond Voltaire, who declared emphatically, "no hell, no heaven!" The one is as logical as the other. The banishment of the one leads to the risk at least of losing the other. Sam Jones with many defects of education and manner, is working more good, perhaps, in his outlawish way, than a wilderness of Chaneys can ever accomplish. If ever there was a time when the children of the town forty years ago. They do not realize that the war is over, and hate Americans as intensely as ever. About two years ago they got mad, smashed in the windows of the American consulate and as usual called the proud spirit of their ancestors. Brother Braggin must nurse his patience.—Montgomery Advertiser.

It is said that there is one office in the gift of the government that nobody wants. It is the consulting ship at Monterey. Monterey is a good sized city, and is a rather pleasant place to live in. But the people there have never gotten over General Taylor's capture of the town forty years ago. They do not realize that the war is over, and hate Americans as intensely as ever. And it may not be amiss to quote right here the following pertinent verses which we find credit to the Denver Republican.

Men don't believe in a devil now, as their fathers used to do. They've forced the door of the broadest creed to let his majesty through;

Their sons have got into the field, or a fiery dart from his bow.

To found in earth or air to day, for the world has voted so.

But who is mixing the fatal draught that palsies the brain?

And who is the earth of the passing year with hundred thousand slain?

Who lights the bloom of the land to day,

With every curse on his wheat?

The devil is voted not to be, and of course the thing is true;

But who is the kind of work the devil alone should do?

Who dogs the steps of the tolling saint, and

Who digs the pitfall of his feet?

Who sows the tares in the field of time,

With every curse on his wheat?

The devil is voted not to be, and of course the thing is true;

But who is the kind of work the devil alone should do?

THE GARDENS.

The recent rains have put the gardens on a boom and the race as to who shall be able to show up the earliest and largest of each variety of vegetables has acquired new interest.

A Preacher Charged with Forgery.

DOUGLASSVILLE, ALA., May 20.—Rev. D. L. James, the Methodist preacher of Blountville, Ala., was arrested here to-day by United States Deputy Marshal Godwin on a warrant charging him with forgery. Last year James put in bids for several mail contracts and forged the names of five prominent men of Blount county to the bonds forwarded with the bids. When this fact was ascertained, last October, James was arrested but afterwards made his escape and was hiding out in Florida. He came to Birmingham last night from Pensacola, and was soon recognized by some one who pointed him out to the marshal.

Of all the changes in the revised edition of the Old Testament, the substitution of the word "sheol" for "hell" seems to give people most concern. According to the revisers the writers of the Old Testament books had no comprehension of "hell" in its modern orthodox significance as a place of eternal torment. The New Testament revisers it will be recollect for the most part eliminated "hell" and substituted "hades." Still there are millions of good people who cannot and will not give up their idea of eternal torment. They will not accept "sheol," or the grave, for the "hell" of the Old Testament, nor will they accept "hades," or the abode of disembodied spirits, for the "hell" of the New Testament. These good, old-fashioned Christians will be strongly tempted to regard the erection of a hotel and eating house at the Junction on West Broad. BLUE EYES INCREASE An Authentic Statement That Will Please Many Maidens.

Speaking on the subject, an eminent professor who has devoted a great deal of attention to the eyes gave this as his opinion: "Without having any data at hand," he said, "I would say that, considering the cause to which blue eyes are attributable, there would be more of that color now than there were fifty years ago."

He explained the matter scientifically thus:

"I think so because the color of the eye depends on the quantity of the pigment deposited in the iris and the amount of light the eye is called upon to absorb. Fifty years ago people were more exposed to the direct rays of the sun and lived less in retirement than they do now, and therefore the eye was called upon to absorb more light. It would be a fair inference that people who were much exposed to free, open sunlight, and living in a state inclining to a state of nature, would have darker eyes than those living a great deal in their homes."

"Do you think the color of eyes attributable in any degree to climatic influences?"

"Yes, the color is subject in a great degree to climatic influences, and the methods of living of the people. To illustrate what I mean about the eye absorbing light, you will observe that walking along in the snow the eye is called upon to absorb a great deal of light, but in looking on a dark piece of velvet it is the reverse. The velvet does the absorption. Blue eyes are increasing in number, I believe, not decreasing."

The decision practically reverses Judge Bruce's opinion recently delivered at Huntsville dismissing suits begun by original attachment.

Anecdote of Webster

The Argonaut.

Webster was out one summer day near Marshfield, busily shooting birds. It was a hot summer day in August. The farmers were getting their salt hay on the marshes. He came in the course of his rambles, to the Green Harbor river, which he wished to cross. He beckoned to one of the men on the opposite bank to take him over in his boat, which lay moored in sight. The man at once left his work, came over, and paddled Mr. Webster across the stream. He declined the payment offered him, but lingered a moment to question his passenger. "This is Dannel Webster, I believe?" "That is my name," replied the sportsman. "Well now," said the farmer, "it seems to me, I declare, if I could get $5 or $6 a day, pleadin' cases up in Boston, I would not be a wading over these marshes, this hot weather, shooting little birds."

The director of the mint has issued a circular announcing that the Superintendents at Philadelphia, San Francisco and New Orleans have been authorized to purchase mutilated and uncirculated United States silver coin of standard fineness at the rate of 98 cents per ounce. Troy weight, when presented in sums of $3 and upwards. The coins can be forwarded to those mints by registered mail or express (charges prepaid,) and the value will be returned at the seller's risk and expense by express registered mail, check or draft. Persons sending full weight United States subsidiary silver coins would receive at the rate authorized about 78 cents per dollar of their face value, but for mutilated coins a less amount, proportioned to their deficiency in legal weight. At the rates paid mutilated silver coins will be worth at the mints per ounce Troy 98 cents, per ounce avoirdupois (about) 89 cents. —Montgomery Advertiser

"Adorers of blue eyes and light eyes generally will be not a little disappointed to learn that they signify cunning and deceitfulness, and that physiognomists advise us to beware of them. It is rather startling information, certainly, in the light of the intelligence that eyes of this color are on the increase."

"Gray eyes are said to denote intelligence, coupled with studiousness and great mental capability, and are adorned by kind feeling. Black eyes are unfathomable, and may either imply deceit and unscrupulousness or a noble elevation of character."

"Eyes like those of any of the lower animals, for instance, will be found where the nature of the person possessing them resembles that of the animal in question. But withal, it is still gratifying to find that blue eyes, always most beautiful, are on the increase."

The Author of "Called Back" Dead.

From the New York Times.
F. J. Fargus, well known under his pseudonym of "Hugh Conway," and as the author of "Called Back," is dead. A dispatch last night from London states that he died at Monaco, where he had been sick for several months with typhoid fever. Mr. Fargus was thirty seven years old. From his youth he was a dabbler at literature, never making it a business, but writing ballads and sketches as suited him, and a volume of so, as he had "money to sink." His peculiarity lay in a taste for picturing improbable things in a plausible way, which was the secret of the success of "Called Back." The enormous sales of that work lifted him at once to a condition of pecuniary comfort, which induced him to break up his home at Bristol, England, with the idea of settling near London after a continental trip. Mr. Fargus was largely self-educated. He had a passion for the sea when a boy, and for a year or two served on the school frigate Conway. Disgusted over his father's opposition to his entering the navy, he apprenticed himself to a Bristol firm of accountants, and learned that business. He has a wife and four children.

About 90 men began work on the 12th inst. on the Bartholdi pedestal. There are 22 courses of stone yet to be added, the cost of which will be $100,000. Of this $47,000 has been collected by the World. The United States steamers Despatch and Minnesota are preparing to go down the narrows to meet the French steamer Isere, which is bringing the statue, and escort her to Bedloe's Island.

A Woman's Complaint.

I know that deep within your heart of hearts
You hold me shrank apart from common things,
And at my step, my voice can bring to you

A gladness that no other presence brings.

And yet, dear love, through all thy wears days—

You never speak one word of ten-

Nor stroke my hair, nor softly clasp
my hand;

Within your own in loving, mute
gazes;

You think, perhaps, I should be all content

To know so well the loving-place I hold

Within your life, and so you do not desire;

How much I long to hear the story told.

You cannot know, when we two sit alone

And tranquil thoughts within your mind are stirred,

My heart is crying like a tired child
For one fond look, one gentle, loving word.

It may be when your eyes look into mine

You only say, "How dear she is to me!"

Oh, could I read it in your softened
glance,

How radiant this plain old world would be.

Perhaps, sometimes, you breathe a secret prayer

That choicest blessings unto me be given,

But if you said aloud, "God bless thee,
dear!"

I should not ask greater boon from heaven.

I weary sometimes of the rugged way,
But should you say, "Through thee
my life is sweet,"

The dreariest desert that our path could cross

Would suddenly grow green beneath my feet.

Tis not the boundless waters ocean leads

That give refreshment to the thirsty
flame,

But just the drops, that, raising to
the skies,

From thence descend in softly falling showers.

What matter that our granaries are filled

With all the richest harvest's golden stores

If we who own them cannot enter in,
But faintly stand before the close-barred doors?

And so 'tis said that those who could be rich

In that true love which crowns our earthly lot,

Go praying with white lips from day
to day,

For love's sweet tokens, and receive them not,

—The Advance.

NOTES OF OUR NEIGHBORS.

The Cross Plains Post thus notes an almost fatal accident to a young lady much esteemed in Jacksonville:

Information comes to us of what like to have been a sad drowning. Miss Willie Borden, of Borden Springs, in company with her cousin, Miss Annie Alexander, were out fishing. Miss Willie grew tired of fishing and went boat riding by herself. Her dress became entangled with some fishing-tackle and in extricating herself, she lost her balance and fell into the deep water. Nothing but her great presence of mind saved her from a watery grave. Be careful, Miss Willie, we are not ready to lose you by so tragic a fate."

As we predicted, "Shrop" of the Coosa River News, "comes back" at the Post and the consequence is all the editorial force and the "devil" turned loose on the poor fellow in the last issue of that paper. The Post is evidently of the impression that had not the Rebels patted "Shrop" on the back he would not have "gone in," but in this the Post is sadly mistaken. "Shrop" is gone to the tip of his comb and needs no encouragement to go into a little fracas like that. Avoid personalities, brethren, and conduct the controversy in good temper.

County Commissioner Anderson has been visiting Cross Plains. The Commissioner manifests great interest in county affairs and doubtless looked around while there to see what could be done in the way of county legislation for that section of the county. The present Commissioner's court are very anxious to do the best they can for the people during their term of office, and no better way to do it can be found than for them to visit various parts of the county, talk to the people and see what they want and need in the way of public improvements.

Mr. Dan Morgan, near Cross Plains, has returned from Texas. He thinks Texas a good country, but prefers Alabama. Sensible man.

Prof. Anderson of White Plains, has been visiting Cross Plains. The Post takes the opportunity to say of him:

"The citizens of that place could not have found a more moral or accomplished young man to take charge of their children."

The Literary Society of Cross Plains is rapidly growing in numbers and interest.

If Gubernatorial horses continue to be "slated" as promiscuously during the next nine months as they have been suggested in the recent past, there will hardly be standing room for them in the next State Convention. Trot out your stock gentlemen; we undertake to name the coming statesman. Thus far Messrs. Scay, Lane, Graham, Bishop, Moore, Dawson, McSpadden, Clayton, McKinley, Johnston, and perhaps others, have been prominently mentioned. Col. Armstrong was spoken of, but he has gone to Rio Janeiro, thinking doubtless, that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." —Jacksonville Gazette.

A great deal is being said about the tardiness of Mr. Cleveland in clearing out the Radical office-holders. Senator Eastus of Louisiana has openly ruptured with the president on the subject, and thousands of other Democrats are also being said to have been promised offices. The Anniston Watchman notes the fact that the general travel shows that ten persons go from Oxford to Anniston to one going from Anniston to Oxford, many of them being ladies who go to Anniston shopping. This is a fair notice to the Oxford merchants to look after their home trade, and they will doubtless take the hint.

Mr. J. O. McPherson caught a thirty-five pound turtle in Choctawhatchee creek some days ago.

The Watchman notes a daily increase of sick persons in Oxford, the sickness being mainly of mild type.

But Mr. Cleveland is not far from right. We would like to see all the offices held by Democrats if they are proper persons to have them; and especially in the South where we dug up the old foxholes.

About 85 members of the late Commercial Convention at Atlanta visited Anniston and Birmingham last Friday and Saturday, while stopping in Anniston they were the guests of the famous Inn.

Died, Tuesday the 19th inst., at Anniston, Lillian, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Coleman.

A Christian church has been organized at Anniston.

The Hot Blast, in noting the business enterprises of Anniston leaves out the newspapers and printing establishments.

Mr. V. H. Marshal, of Anniston, has a book printed in 1833.

It is reported that the attack of Senator Morgan, of Alabama, on trades unions will be considered at a coming labor mass meeting in New York. It is not likely that the Senator will be demolished. He has always been able to keep up his side.

Supreme Court met in Montgomery Monday, and the citizens of this community are anxiously waiting for the decision of our railroad case which will surely be rendered in a few days. If the case is rendered favorably we learn Maj. Carlisle will commence work on the road at once, so let every body look up and be hopeful.—Gadsden Democ.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS.

The Shelby Sentinel, alluding to the killing of a negro in Chilton county recently for threats in connection with the pursuits and intended lynching of a black scoundrel for the rape of a white woman, and the subsequent flight of many negroes from that section to Montgomery to claim the protection of the Governor, says:

"Several colored people from Chilton county have called on the Governor in relation to the recent disturbances. If they want 'the majesty of the law upheld,' they should arrest the black scoundrel who is the cause of all the trouble and turn him over to the proper authorities. When the sensible portion of the colored people determine to aid their true friends in protecting the honor of their homes, there will be no use for the military or shot guns. If they fail to do this, their fate will be that of the Indian. Slowly but surely."

(Gail Hamilton,) Blaine's right hand woman, has not gotten over his defeat yet. She labors for the W. C. T. U. for St. John's part in the canvass, in the current "North American Review." A woman cherishes spite a long while.—Selma Times.

Encouraged by the success of so hard a sinner as John A. Logan, John Sherman has determined to stand for re-election.—Birmingham Age.

The Southern people are not an office-seeking people. They only ask to have Federal officers who will not use their power for purposes of oppression and private gain. And we think the President ought first of all to give his attention to the appointment of such officers in the South. We have suffered long and patiently, and our demand is reasonable.—Chamberlain Tribune.

The President Cleveland got the sharpest taste of offensive partisanship the other day the administration has yet encountered. It was the jubilation with which a crowd of department clerks received the election of Logan. They dragged out a canon and fired the thing in a stone's throw of the White House. The only remedy for this sort of impudence is to turn the rascals out.—Birmingham Age.

It is said that Postmaster-General Vilas is getting ready to make a little war on the Louisiana State Lottery Company. This will bring another war on the Administration by the East's ring of Louisiana.

The Tuscaloosa boys won the cadet prize at the New Orleans drill, and now it is Tuscaloosa's turn to have a fit.—Jasper (Walker County) Eagle.

The Coosa furnace at Gadsden having been thoroughly repaired was blown in again last Wednesday.

The Republican.

MAY 30, 1885.

Mr. R. W. Raymond, of New York, very largely interested in iron and other character of mining, came down to Anniston from the Chattanooga Convention of Mining Engineers and telegraphed Gen. Wm. H. Forney to meet him there. Next day he came up here and in company with Gen. Forney went to inspect an extraordinary deposit of iron ore near this place. He had heard of this place before leaving the North and came down from Chattanooga specially to see it. After looking over the vast extent of the deposit, he took specimens of ores from the different beds for analysis on his return home. He examined several specimens of brown hematite ore displayed in the REPUBLICAN office and pronounced one of them from near here as remarkably fine. He went from here to Birmingham to meet the Thomases and examine with them their iron lands near that city. If the Thomases can find as large quantity of brown hematite ore on their lands near Birmingham, as they think they have, they will doubtless put down an iron plant at once. They undoubtedly have an abundance of the red ore but the brown ore is what they are seeking and it was for this that Mr. Raymond went to Birmingham. Mr. Raymond is one of the most distinguished mining engineers in the United States. He was much pleased with the character of country hereabouts. In the course of a conversation while here he said that if our brown hematite ores proved to be of considerable extent, this mining district had advantages over any other in the South. It will take time to determine the extent of the iron deposits in this part of the State, he thought.

"The New York Herald" has had an interview with Hon. S. J. Randall, in which the great protectionist shows surprising liberality on the tariff question. He said:

"As to the tariff, the administration should be guided by the spirit and letter of the utterances of our platform on this subject, and a faithful execution of these declarations without cavil will unite our party everywhere and accomplish the tariff reform which both platforms asserted to be necessary. Changes occur in the conditions existing in our country and the countries with which we exchange productions more rapidly than is supposed. These changes must be provided for through modifications in our tariff laws, and the best time to make these alterations is immediately following the information and results shown by our system and census returns."

These views are regarded as astonishing in New York, and as significant of Mr. Randall's acquiescence in tariff reform.—Selma Times.

COTTON GINNING.

Untold sums are lost to the cotton planter every year by ignorance of the best way to gin his crop as well as by use of inferior gins. The loss from bad ginning comes in two ways: the first, by not turning out the best possible grade of lint from the seed cotton, and the second, by not cleaning the seed of all the lint. Experiments have recently been made by a committee of the Louisville Cotton Exchange to determine the speed of the saws which will produce the best results. The following account of those experiments is from the Courier Journal which says:

The committee report that they tested the gin saws at various rates of speed, from 210 to 470 per minute, using 70 pounds seed cotton in each test. Speed 210 produced a rough and lumpy lint, leaving to the seed an undue proportion of lint, but producing a high average for the latter in respect to uniformity of staple. The product, however, was on the whole, unsatisfactory; the rate of 250 was also unsatisfactory; 275 and 300 produced nearly identical results, the 300 rate being somewhat the smoother; however, and 350 a still higher degree of smoothness. It was ascertained that the latter rate cleaned off the seed too closely, promoting an economy of waste, but at the expense of fiber and quality. The rate 400 indicated a great deterioration in this particular, and 470 a marked exaggeration of the same objectionable results. On the whole, the rate 300 was adjudged most satisfactory in respect to the two-fold interests of economy and the character of the fiber.

FRANKLIN, Ky., May 26.—The mob which took Hicks and Taylor from jail early this morning left town quietly and shortly afterwards the bodies of the two incendiaries were found hanging from the limb of a tree near Mitchellville Station, Tennessee, just across the Kentucky line. Hicks made a confession and said that he and Taylor were guilty. Great excitement prevails here. Hundreds of people have visited the scene of the hanging, where the bodies of the two men still dangle from the tree.

Lynching of Hicks and Taylor.

FRANKLIN, Ky., May 26.—The effects of the different rates of speed upon the lint above indicated suggest corresponding results for the seed as an important and distinct commercial product, and the committee's examination sustained the inference.

The time occupied in ginning seventy pounds of seed cotton at the different rates of speed varied between $\frac{1}{2}$ minutes at 210, and 44 minutes at 470. The favored speed, 300 per minute, did its work in 6 minutes.

NOTES OF OUR NEIGHBORS.

The Anniston Watchman notes a mysterious occurrence at that place:

"On the 4th of May a car was loaded with iron at one of our furnaces by Mr. D. G. Mitchell, destined for St. Thomas, Ontario. It was sealed here, but not until some time after it had been loaded. It was shipped over the Georgia Pacific, and on the morning of the 9th arrived in Louisville, where it had to be transferred. Opened the car a nauseating stench came from it and inside was found the dead body of a negro man. There was nothing about him by which he could be identified. Yesterday tracings were received here by Agent McDonald, sent in regular railroad form, asking light on the mystery. As yet no one is missing from here except the negro, Eugene Green, who shot another negro near the furnace about that time. The body was turned over to the coroner in Louisville and was buried without any expense to Anniston or Calhoun county."

Mr. W. N. Reid and Miss L. A. Knapp were married in Anniston the 22d inst.

Talladega sent nearly two hundred people up on the excursion train to Anniston the day of the circus.

The tabernacle services at Anniston, that were conducted by Rev. Mr. Claggett, have closed.

Two countrymen, in camp, not long since in the neighborhood of Oxford, were heard in the following dialogue:

"Bill," says No. 1, "Persimmonnes makes a mighty good beer. Yes, said Bill, and be dad drat if that locust don't make good beer too.—Watchman.

A number of mining engineers from the adjourned convention of mining engineers at Chattanooga, headed by Mr. R. W. Raymond, of New York, visited Anniston, Jefferson and Ironaton last Saturday.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to burglarize the store of Mr. C. T. Hilton, of Oxford, Friday night, the 22d inst.

Plymouth, a town in Pennsylvania, has suffered fearfully for some weeks with typhoid fever, more than eight hundred people being sick with it and many deaths occurring, and now the telegraph brings information that the fatal black tongue diphtheria has broken out in other Pennsylvania towns. Pleuro-pneumonia has also broken out among the cattle at some points in that state. This is certainly an accumulation of misfortunes.

SUICIDE OF A CITY CLERK.

E. L. Catteville, of Enfield, takes his own life.

Montgomery Advertiser.

ETTALIA, ALA., May 26.—Mr. E. L. Catteville, clerk of the City Court, suicided here to-day at 2 o'clock by shooting himself through the brain. He died in about an hour. No cause is known for the desperate deed. A committee of the City Council were examining his books and were to have reported to-day week. The committee refuse to be interviewed as to what condition they were finding his accounts in. He was insured for $12,000, of which $5,000 was in the "Mutual Reserve fund," and the balance, I think in societies. He was very popular and left an interesting family. He had been clerk about four years.

The Freaks of a Crazy Negro.

MACON, Ga., May 26.—Jessup is the meeting point for trains of the lower division of the E. T. V. & Ga. railroad, and has a negro character known as "Crazy Bill." Early yesterday morning a freight train of thirty cars bound for Macon was waiting the arrival of the passenger train from Macon. Bill stole into the locomotive cab, blew the whistle and started off, shooting over many switches but keeping the track. The lunatic ran the train five miles, but was stalled at the foot of a hill as water in the boiler ran low. The engineer, yard master and others, on seeing the train leave, ran after and found it at the hill. The lunatic on stopping blew the signal for the switchman and then sat down on the end of a crostie and read his testament. He was secured and no time lost in side-tracking the train, which was accomplished just as the passenger train came up. But for a stoppage they would have met in a frightful collision. The lunatic was placed in jail. The only damage done was the tearing up of the track in the yard at Jessup.

Lynching of Hicks and Taylor.

Southern Ensilage—a Valuable Experiment.

From Southern Live Stock Journal.

Mr. Editor:—As the preservation of green food in silos for winter use and consumption is regarded in the South by many, as experimental, and by some not without suspicion, I desire to submit through the columns of your valuable journal, "to whom it may concern," the result of my experiments.—In the month of August last, after a most unfavorable season for curing hay, resulting from heavy and continuous rains, and in prospect of an almost entire failure in the fall crop on account of the existing and what proved to be, almost unparalleled drought, I was impressed with the necessity of looking to some other source for winter food, and if possible, providing for the future, against a similar contingency. I had read much, and with great interest, on the subject of silos, and while not entirely satisfied that they could be employed as successfully, and result as beneficially, at the South as they had been at the North, I resolved—making a virtue of necessity—to give the matter a fair and impartial test, and if I failed to realize my expectations, to sound the note of warning to my Southern brethren; or succeeding, to proclaim my "eureka," that others might be benefited. To proceed systematically, I at once procured the services of a most skillful mechanic and progressive farmer—a subscriber I believe to your paper—Mr. Robt. Bowling of Alexandria, Ala., who had given the subject of ensilage much study and was prepared to construct a silo consonant with the most approved plan, and conformable to models through which the greatest success had been attained. Selecting a hill-side, he first dug a pit something over 30 feet square, and over 10 feet deep, grading off the lower side for a distance of 76 feet to a level with the bottom of the pit, upon which I built a barn and cow stable 76 feet long and a little more than 30 feet wide—same width of the pit—using the ground on grade with bottom of the pit for cow stalls. With rock, cement and sand, a wall 15 inches thick was built inside dirt walls and entirely enclosing the pit, except on the lower side, where three doors were left in the wall for convenience in removing the ensilage to my cow stalls. Two partition walls 15 inches thick were built inside the outer walls of the silo, thus dividing one large silo into three smaller ones to be entered by the three doors above referred to. The floor of the silo and cow stable was well drained and laid in cement, stone and sand. My silo completed, presented a beautiful and substantial piece of masonry, with walls and floor perfectly smooth, air-tight and water-proof. The roof of my barn was extended so as to place the silos and cow stalls under the same shelter—the floor of the barn being on a level with the top of the silos and reached with hay, by driving over the silos covered for the purpose, with heavy plank. Although this work was pushed forward with all possible dispatch, it was not finished in time to get corn in the succulent juicy state I would have preferred it. I however persuade myself that I have lost but little on this account.

Having provided myself with the "No. 1 Little Giant Ensilage Cutter," manufactured by E. Ross & Co. Fulton N. Y., which I ran with an electric engine, I began the work of hauling in and cutting up what corn in the country I could get that was suitable for my purpose.—Eight or nine wagons were brought into requisition, and as the corn was being hauled in and piled up before starting the cutter, the task of cutting it with so small a machine seemed Herculean. The "Little Giant" was represented to cut 5 tons per hour, and in this representation, apparently incredible, there was ground for hope. Gauging it so as to cut the corn 3 of an inch long, we plied the steam, and by standers stood in mute surprise and admiration at the work of the "Little Giant." I would not derogate from the merit of other cutters, but I unquestionably say the "Little Giant" is the most perfect machine, coming nearer up to representation, than I have ever seen. Properly fed, I believe it will do all that is claimed for it. The silos were not filled as rapidly as they might have been, in order to get the necessary temperature for sweet ensilage. Having finished the work by covering the ensilage with plank and weighting down the same with rock, I left it to be opened on the 1st November. This completes the detail of my work from inception, and it only remains for me to give my opinion of the value of ensilage, well preserved as mine was, for winter feed for cattle. This I can briefly do by collating results. First, my cattle prefer it to any other food, constitute it with avidity and with no inconvenience or bad results. Second, since going into winter quarters in November, they have steadily improved in appearance, and look 25 percent better now than they did at this time last year on an abundance of dry hay and twice as much grain as they now consume. Third, they have improved surprisingly in the yield of milk and butter since I began to feed on ensilage, and my butter has a rich yellow cast and delicious flavor imparted to it by any other kind of winter food I have ever used. These facts deduced from actual experience, may be sufficient to convince the skeptical, but in conclusion I desire to add, to what I have already said, that the construction of my silos at a cost of $500.00, is the best and most remunerative investment I have ever made, and I have no hesitancy in commending it to breeders as a happy and easy solution of one of our most perplexing problems: providing cheaply an abundance of suitable, wholesome and nutritious feed for our cattle in the winter. A White Black Man.

Montgomery Advertiser.

SELMA, May 25, 1885.—Dallas county comes to the front this spring in the person of a human curiosity in the person of Gabe Minter, a negro laborer who lives on the plantation of the Messrs. Randall, near Marion Junction, fifteen miles west of Selma. Originally and by birth Gabe Minter was a negro, in complexion a shade lighter than the darkest midnight. Last year his face and hands began to whiten, and have continued to whiten ever since; until now there is but little in his outward appearance to tell the story of an American birth save the kinky hair that covers his head. The transaction from black to white is strangely wonderful when we remember that the negro phenomenon has never suffered in any way from skin disease, and there is no apparent cause or reason for the striking change in the color of his complexion. His hands and arms to his elbows and more than half of his face are as white and smooth as the skin of the fairest blonde; and the upper portion of his body is rapidly undergoing the remarkable change. He is seen occasionally on the streets of Selma and never fails to attract attention.

In conversation with the writer, Mr. H. C. Randall said: "Gabe is a fortune all within himself and I have told him so. He is a wonder well worth the seeing, and if he would travel and exhibit himself such as through the country, people would not fail to see him and pay a small fee for the fun."

These are solid, solemn facts strengthened by a stern, strange reality. Gabe Minter, the reality, doesn't seem disposed to make a circus of himself, but prefers simply to live the peaceful life of a private citizen and be happy.

It is believed that ex-Congressman John Wise will be rejudged candidate for governor of Virginia.

The magical cure of colds and coughs by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, is indisputable.

It has rained almost continuously the past two weeks and crops are getting somewhat in grass. But what the farmers lose in this direction is more than made up in another. But for these rains, the oat crop would have been a total failure. As it is the oat crop will be good. With the change of the moon, which occurs about this time, it is expected the rains will cease.

Circuit Court.

Judge Box, although delayed by a change of schedule on the East & West R. R. some hours, reached Jacksonville Monday and at once opened court. The crowd in attendance has not been large at any time, owing to the way the docket was arranged and the pains taken by court officers not to have people attend except upon the days set for the particular cases in which they were interested, either as parties or witnesses. The juries selected for this week are made up of very intelligent men. The business of the court goes on smoothly and but for the slightly larger crowds about the court house than usual, one would not know that court was being held here at all.

PERSONAL.

Mr. W. W. Snow, local editor of the Anniston Watchman paid us a pleasant pop-call Wednesday evening. We were pleased to learn from him that the Watchman was on the high road to prosperity.

Capt. John Postell, Superintendent of the East & West Road, was in town a few days this week.

Hon. Jno. W. Inzer, of St. Clair, one of the Directors of the East & West Railroad, was here this week, looking after the interests of his road in the courts.

J. J. Willett, Esq., one of the foremost young lawyers of the county was up from Anniston attending court some days this week.

Geo. W. Parsons Esq., of the Talladega bar has been here this week attending court.

Joe A. Walden, Esq., of Centre, attended court here this week.

Maj. P. Rowan returned the latter part of last week from an extended visit to the New Orleans Exposition.

That old and honored citizen of Calhoun, Mr. G. W. Humphries, was in Jacksonville the early part of this week visiting friends. Mr. H. is over eighty years of age, but yet more Hale than most men of sixty-five. He is ever welcome in Jacksonville and the people here vie with each other for the pleasure of entertaining him whenever he comes.

Judge Box has called the present term of court to try certain cases on the docket and he intends to have them tried. It is in vain that attorneys put up showings for continuances.

R. Kelly, Esq., made a close and fine argument in one of his cases Wednesday and won it. His speech was highly complimented by many who heard it. He is one of the most promising young men at the bar in this State. He is industrious and sticks to his books.

The experiment of Mrs. Wyly and Dr. Montgomery in silk culture demonstrates the fact that every family in this country might, with little labor and no outlay, raise from twenty-five to fifty dollars worth of raw silk each year.

This would foot up a very large amount of money to be added to the existing production of the country. It is a diversity of such small industries that make a country great and rich. The ladies of Jacksonville ought to take notes from Mrs. Wyly and Dr. Montgomery this season and be prepared to raise some silk next season.

With about six weeks light work they can each make fifty dollars for pin money, which is a sum not to be despised. There is nothing repulsive about the business. On the contrary it is one that will afford interest and pleasure to a lady.

THE GARDENS AND FIELDS.

Large vegetables of the earliest varieties are now so common as to cause no comment and the man with the big string beans or the big Irish potatoes is voted rather tiresome. The thing our amateurs are now reaching for is the earliest okra, the largest cabbage head in the quietest time and the first tomato of the season—no hot house forcing allowed.

Mr. Conrad Stewart, the excellent gardener of Mr. W. C. Crow, thinks he will undoubtedly get the first cabbage head—firm and bleached—on exhibition. Taking his garden as a whole, and considering the character of soil—hard red clay hill side—into consideration, he makes the best show of any one in town. He hauls in rich woods earth and fertilizes his cabbages and onions with it, and they grow with astonishing rapidity.

The strawberry crop has proven almost a total failure here this season. Judge Woods is about the only one in town who has had any consequence. Strawberries have sold here this season for fifteen cents a quart and but small quantity have been offered at this figure.

The recent rains have brought out the fine meadow of Dr. Arnold on the spring branch near here wonderfully. He gets as many cows to board at two dollars a month as it will support. If he had his whole forty acres in grass, he could get enough stock to board at these figures to fill his pasture. It is easy to see that this is the most profitable use of the ground can be put to. Cattle all the summer enrich the land on which they graze, pay $2 a head besides, and then he can cut a fine crop of hay in the fall after they shall have been taken off. Good pastures is one thing this country sorely needs. The editor of this paper had a colt he wished to run on a good pasture this summer, and none could be found nearer than Maj. Francis' place, fifteen miles from here, and the animal was sent there. Will not some of the enterprising farmers near here imitate Dr. Arnold and give the country about here that which it so badly needs—good pasture for stock? About Nashville Tennessee they are numerous and board for stock is as regularly advertised in the city papers there as board for people.

Hon. Jno. D. Hammond, having sold his place near the depot, has rented a part of Maj. Wyly's farm in view of town and has put it in fine state of cultivation. The whole appearance of the landscape hereabouts is improved by the removal of the old sedge from that field. The place lies beautifully and in full view of the town. In the fine grove on the hill in the midst of it is a very fine building site and it is to be regretted that some of the trees are being cut away for firewood. Some day there will be a fine dwelling on that hill, if the grove is suffered to remain, and those gently rolling hills will be covered with the cultivated grasses, adding wonderfully to the charm of the landscape about Jacksonville.

Standing on any elevated point in Jacksonville, and looking in every direction, the fields present a most pleasing picture to the eye, with their furrows of lusty corn straight as an arrow, broken here and there by a green carpet of oats or wheat or grass. Back and encircling this landscape, like the frame to a picture, are the lofty mountains clothed in many shades of green and woodland flowers. In the centre of the picture nestles the town with its beautiful private residences, its cosy cottages, its lovely flower yards. On every side of the town flow crystal clear brooks, that water rich meadows. God has made but one prettier place than this, and an angel stands at the gate of that with flaming sword, so that no man may enter.

Tired and Languid Women.

How many women are of whom these words are true: "They feel languid and tired, hardly able to bear their weight on their feet, the bloom all gone from their cheeks, irritable and cross without meaning to be, nerves all upset, worried with the children, fretted over little things, a burden to themselves, and yet with no acute disease. What a pity it is. But a few bottles of Parker's Tonic will drive this away, and relieve the troubles peculiar to their sex."

JOTTINGS FROM CROSS PLAINS.

IT CAN'T BE HELPED.

We are having an abundance of rain and the farmers are beginning to cry hold up. They are afraid of the grass. The young crops are green and flourishing and everything is growing on rapidly.

Our town is dull now. Local happenings are very sure and it is impossible to go up even a small batch of interesting items. But this is the time of all others when newspaper men want local items from the different towns and neighborhoods—just when they are not to be had.

The present term of our schools will soon close for the summer months. The schools have been large all through the session and the patrons seem to be well pleased with the way they are conducted.

Next Saturday is the day appointed for the big picnic at Shady Grove, four miles northeast of Cross Plains. We hear of a large crowd going.

The management of the E. T. V. & G. Railroad has greatly accommodated the people of this section by placing a day accommodation train on the road between Talladega and Rome. We hope it will be continued as it gives our citizens the opportunity of visiting Rome and returning in the day time.

Mr. James M. Bradshaw has returned from a visit to Greenville.

I regret to state that Mrs. Lon Ferguson is very seriously sick.

In speaking of opening the East & West Railroad to Birmingham, last week, the types make me say "this will be a good route for traders," it should be, "for travelers."

A SUCCESSFUL FARMER.
Who Lives at Home and Makes Money.

It is a habit of farmers to put up such a poor mouth, and it is a matter of fact that our agricultural districts are so in debt, that when we come across a farmer that is making money we look upon him as somewhat of a rara avis. If the truth was told by a census, prosperous farmers would turn up in such numbers as to astound the keepers of the mortgage record of the country.

Mr. J. M. Reynolds is a member of the executive committee of the State Agricultural Society, and was here Friday attending a meeting of that committee. He and another farmer were discussing their farms and farming processes in hearing of a reporter, who jotted down the following facts: Mr. Reynolds said he used to run a store in Talladega and thinking he was as prosperous as other men in that business. At any rate, he found merchandising profitable. Seven years ago, having enough counters and customers, he moved to his 600 acre farm in Choccolocco Valley and settled down to the happy life of a farmer. He had made farming pay from the jump. In fact, he had made more money on his farm than he ever did in his store, and had much better and easier and pleasanter time doing it. He cultivates about two hundred acres and works his hands for wages. He won't hire a laborer on any other terms and settles up with them monthly, paying the balance due them in cash. Then if they want to go to town and spend it, he lets them have his wagon for half a day. During all the balance of the month he keeps them at work on exactly the same plan as a manufacturer work his employees. He finds the wage plan to pay. It enables him to keep up the discipline of his place and to his labor system he ascribes his success. He raises his meat for his own family and, would raise it for his hands but thinking it would not pay as a plain business proposition. He raises his own stock, finds it to pay and is going more extensively into the business. He thinks oats one of the best crops, whether raised to use at home or sell.

The points to remember are, that he finds farming more profitable than merchandising, works his hands for wages, pays them monthly in cash, keeps books now, just as he did when merchandising, and believes that farming is the best business going.—Montgomery Advertiser.

A Barefooted Engine.

Amistown Watchman.

Gill Gorce's switch engine on the G. P. railroad is the gliblest running piece of machinery that has ever been seen in this country. It runs so noiselessly in passing we are sometimes half persuaded to think that it is some fair maiden running a sewing machine on a neighboring corner. So thought a Teutonic citizen of Opanna, at least, the other day, when a few sharp whistles from the engine warned him for the second or third time to get off the track. And the remark that the aforesaid citizen made was the highest compliment that has been paid the engine yet. Cliff let the engine run up gently to the back of the Opanna man, who was walking along the track with his mind absorbed in big schemes, and gave the whistle the quiver of alarm. The startled Teuton jumped from the track and exclaimed: "Mein Gott! Dot vas more as two times dot tam barefoot machine has clipped on mit me already."

One of the bloodiest tragedies of the day is reported from Texas. Some months ago Samuel P. Holmes and his wife separated. They both continued to reside in Paris, and Mrs. Holmes added to her income by taking a few boarders. The other night, Holmes, who is an old man of fifty, slipped into his wife's residence, made his way to her room, and attacked her with a bowie knife. The woman defended herself with savage ferocity, screaming all the while for help. Her sister, Mrs. Tighe, and Prof. J. W. Youmans, a boarder hastened to her assistance. When the professor entered the room Holmes sprang from the prostrate body of his wife and stabbed him several times killing him instantly. He then turned his attention to his sister-in-law and stabbed her in her neck, chest and arms until she was dead. When the neighbors rushed into the room the place looked like a slaughter pen. Mrs. Holmes was bathed in blood, but still conscious. On the floor lay dead bodies of Mrs. Tighe and Youmans. The case of Mrs. Holmes was pronounced hopeless, as she had two fatal wounds. The murderer made his escape unnoticed. A posse of two hundred citizens was organized to pursue him. Preparations were made to kill him on sight, as he is a powerful man, and is expected to make a desperate fight. A few years ago such atrocious domestic tragedies seldom if ever occurred in the south. They were confined to the north and west. But crime cannot be hedged in by geographical lines. In an age where murder and theft are in the air no section, no community can expect to be exempt. It is useless to disguise the fact that crime is increasing. Statistics support this conclusion. Now let our sociologists and lawmakers search for the cause and provide the preventive.

Doubts Run in the Family—A Prospective Bride's Prediction.

From the Los Angeles Express.

This morning, about 11 o'clock, a farmer drove up in front of the court house with a double-seated rig, which contained three persons—the old man and a young lady and gentleman. Upon alighting, inquiry was made as to where a marriage license could be obtained. The information was readily given, and all hands repaired into the County Clerk's office. After a short time the party came forth and the young couple appeared to be quite well pleased with themselves and the world at large. They were about to take their seats in the wagon when out from under the hind seat flew a fine speckled hen.

"Oh, Johnathan, there is Speck—where did she come from?—catch her, she'll get away."

A lively chase was made, and finally Speck was captured. A string was procured and the legs of Speck firmly fastened, and the old gentleman was about to place Speck under the seat, when a fresh laid egg was brought to light.

The mere finding of the egg amounted to nothing, but through carelessness it dropped to the ground and broke. Upon investigation it was found to contain a double yolk. The young and blushing soon-to-be-bride had no more than glanced at it than she exclaimed:

"I knew it John; I was right. It runs in our family."

"What's that, Mary?" asked the young man, looking askance at his companion.

"Why, John, don't you remember what we're talking about last Sunday night—that double cherry and tomato? And now this double egg. It is sure sign we'll have twins, and—"

"Sh, keep still, don't you see 'em giggling get in the wagon," said the young man. The order was quickly obeyed, and the happy pair drove off, and the group of spectators who had been attracted to the scene proceeded around the corner to smile.

One of the bloodiest tragedies of the day is reported from Texas. Some months ago Samuel P. Holmes and his wife separated. They both continued to reside in Paris, and Mrs. Holmes added to her income by taking a few boarders. The other night, Holmes, who is an old man of fifty, slipped into his wife's residence, made his way to her room, and attacked her with a bowie knife. The woman defended herself with savage ferocity, screaming all the while for help. Her sister, Mrs. Tighe, and Prof. J. W. Youmans, a boarder hastened to her assistance. When the professor entered the room Holmes sprang from the prostrate body of his wife and stabbed him several times killing him instantly. He then turned his attention to his sister-in-law and stabbed her in her neck, chest and arms until she was dead. When the neighbors rushed into the room the place looked like a slaughter pen. Mrs. Holmes was bathed in blood, but still conscious. On the floor lay dead bodies of Mrs. Tighe and Youmans. The case of Mrs. Holmes was pronounced hopeless, as she had two fatal wounds. The murderer made his escape unnoticed. A posse of two hundred citizens was organized to pursue him. Preparations were made to kill him on sight, as he is a powerful man, and is expected to make a desperate fight. A few years ago such atrocious domestic tragedies seldom if ever occurred in the south. They were confined to the north and west. But crime cannot be hedged in by geographical lines. In an age where murder and theft are in the air no section, no community can expect to be exempt. It is useless to disguise the fact that crime is increasing. Statistics support this conclusion. Now let our sociologists and lawmakers search for the cause and provide the preventive.

The lynching of a leading white man at Liberty, Va., for the wanton murder of a prominent citizen, is proof that the Southern people do not in their love of inflicting severe punishments confine their administration of it to negroes alone.

Major E. A. Burke, whose resignation as director general of the New Orleans exposition took effect yesterday, is a self-made man of Irish descent. He was born in Texas at fifty-six years ago. After serving in the confederate army he set up a wagon manufactory in Texas, but was unsuccessful and soon turned up in New Orleans as a stone cutter in a marble yard. From this he drifted into the railroad business, thence into politics where he made himself a force, and finally into the newspaper business as editor and proprietor of the Times-Democrat one of the best papers in the south.

A lot of coarse Iowa republicans sent the following telegram to President Cleveland on the election of Logan as senator from Illinois: The republicans of Iowa send compliments to your excellency, and congratulate you on the beneficial results of your dispatch to Illinois. "Send any one but Logan?" Thank God the republicans of our sister state delight to honor the man who will beat you in 1888! Iowa's time will come presty soon. Then look out for bouncing.

Macon Telegraph: What a row it would make if Patti should fall into the hands of the Fijians, be baked into pie and served at dinner. And yet the Georgia moko shays and eats the mockingbird without creating a particle of excitement outside the mockingbird's family. Perhaps the mockingbird can not sing as well as Patti. Perhaps not, but just get a reserved seat on a rail fence some of these fine spring mornings and listen to the bird awhile. Maybe you will think he can.
